'Hoodlums', Ike Calls Bombers

They Resemble Capone and Babyface Nelson, He Says

Washington — President Eisenhower today angrily characterized those responsible for bombings of places of worship as hoodlums of the Al Capone and Babyface Nelson type.

At a news conference the president spoke out vigorously against the dynamiting of Jewish temples in Atlanta, Ga., and Peoria, Ill.

He did so after a reporter told him that some of those responsible apparently have been privately identifying themselves as members of a "Confederate underground."

Addressing himself to that description, Eisenhower said that from babyhood he has been taught to respect the Confederacy of Civil War days.

Nonpartisan Policy

Then he said that for hoodlums to describe themselves as any part of the Confederacy is a complete insult.

Eisenhower also dealt with other matters.

He said emphatically that foreign policy ought to be kept out of partisan debate in the current congressional campaign.

Then he went on to say that another man who has borne the responsibility of the presidency—a clear allusion to Harry S. Truman—also has fore Justice of taken the position that foreign policy should be left out of partisan politics.

Eisenhower made his remarks when a newsman asked whether he subscribes to Vice President Nixon's campaign statement, made in reply to Democratic criticism, that "the Acheson foreign policy resulted in war and the Eisenhower-Dulles policy resulted in peace."

Eisenhower said he had not heard that quotation before. Then he added, without any direct comment on the Nixon statement, that he does subscribe to the idea that foreign policy should be kept out of partisan debate.

He said further that the Hortonville—Alex Volz, 53, Shiocton, was fined $100 and had his driver's license revoked for one year when he pleaded guilty to drunk driving in an accident which killed a 12-year-old boy.

Volz, 53, was arrested Oct. 12, Volz tested .25 on the drunkometer. A reading of .15 is considered evidence of drunkenness.

His wife, Norma, a passenger in the car, was fined $5 for public intoxication. Both faced Justice Dunn Monday.

Ike Sees Record U. S. Prosperity

New York — President Eisenhower says the United States apparently is headed toward record prosperity.

"All the evidence is that we are on the road to a new peak of prosperity," Eisenhower said last night during a state-wide filmed television interview with Rep. Kenneth Keating, Republican candidate for U.S. senator.

Eisenhower said:

"We don't shut our eyes to the fact that a free economy does have cycles—and you have down slopes and upward trends. . . for example, just in September, this tremendous rise in jobs exceeded our best expectations. I think it was something like 600,000 just for the one month."

"That to my mind is another example of the kind of recovery that you can expect when there is a sound, sensible leadership displacing a hysterical sort of proposition that can do nothing but put this government and this whole country deeper into debt."

Callaghan, Ex-Chief Of Secret Service, Dies

Chicago — Thomas Callaghan, 73, former U. S. Secret Service chief in Chicago, died today.

A personal bodyguard of five former presidents, Callaghan retired from the secret service in 1945. Illness forced his retirement as an official of a Chicago manufacturing firm last February.

'Fat Cat' Backer of Terrorism Sought in Atlanta Bombing Case

Atlanta — A high-up "fat cat" backer of anti-Semitic terrorism figured today in police investigation of the $200,000 dynamiting of the Jewish Temple here.

This financial angel of a fanatic hate-mongering ring was mentioned in one of two letters seized as police raided the homes of five persons held for questioning about the early Sunday outrage.

Quoted Letter

Detective Capt. R. E. Little described the other paper, as a penciled draft of a letter addressed to an Atlanta Jewish leader before the Temple blast. It said:

"You will soon witness a terrifying experience."

The detectives did not say precisely where either letter was seized, whether the one to the Jewish leader was ever held, mailed or what the leader's name is.

The other letter, Little said, was mailed from Arlington, Va., just before five men were arrested here in July for an anti-Jewish demonstration in front of the Atlanta Journal-Constitution building.

"Thanks to one man, one 'fat cat' financier, we can now do the things we've been planning to do," it said.

The letter did not identify the "fat cat" but Little said the name of a man once prominent in public affairs has turned up repeatedly in King Corley, 25, and Kenneth Chester Griffin, 32, all of the Atlanta.

Investigators said they believe that when the $200,000 Atlanta blast is solved, it will clear up other synagogue bombings in Miami and Jacksonville, Fla.; Nashville, Tenn.; and an attempted dynamiting in Birmingham, Ala. All the bombings have occurred in the last eight months.

Others Arrested

Under arrest in addition to Allen and Bright were Robert A. Bowling, 25; Luther King Corley, 25; and Kenneth Chester Griffin, 32, all of the Atlanta.

The letter referred to a wealthy backer as having "put his dollars where his mouth is — God bless him."

It also mentioned a "big clear up other synagogue bombings in Miami and Jacksonville, Fla.; Nashville, Tenn.; and an attempted dynamiting in Birmingham, Ala. All the bombings have occurred in the last eight months."

The boys from New York will be coming down. There's no guts in the local citizens. The officers said they are attempting to locate five men

4-Man Cabinet Seeks To End Lebanon Strife

Site Big Issue

Outagamie Board OK's $250,000 for UW, but Wants Center in County

Outagamie county supervisors Tuesday voted to appropriate $250,000 toward construction of a University of Wisconsin extension center.

However, the appropriation depends on two things—Winnebago county appropriating a similar amount at its Oct. 28 meeting and selection of a site suitable to the Outagamie county board.

During the day-long discussion over the extension center building and where it will be, supervisors made it clear the majority of them:

1. Favor an extension center.
2. Will not consider building it anywhere but in Outagamie county.

It has been proposed and has been under study for two months by two special committees that Winnebago and Outagamie counties join to build the extension center at a site agreeable to both to serve the Fox Cities.

The UW board of regents last month went on record as willing to establish a center if the two counties would furnish a building. In fact, the regents made a $145,000 budget request for equipment.

County Cooperation

However, all the talk about county cooperation vanished Tuesday.

The supervisors voted in favor of their committee's resolution to appropriate $250,000 only after making sure they were recording only their support for a center. It was clear, as Appleton Supv. Sylvester Esler put it, "Neenah - Menasha had the center for years and Winnebago county didn't do a thing for it. If Winnebago wants

Tunisia Cuts Off Relations With Nasser

Accuses UAR of Meddling With Internal Affairs

Tunis — The government of Tunisia today broke diplomatic relations with the United Arab Republic after a series of political battles between the two Arab countries.

The break was announced by Dr. Sadok Mokkadem, Tunisian secretary of state for foreign affairs. Tunisia has accused President Nasser of meddling in Tunisia's internal affairs.

The United Arab Republic ambassador in Tunis was informed of the break this morning, Mokkadem said.

The newly intensified feud between Nasser and pro-western President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia indicated a struggle for the allegiance of other North African Arabs and a continuing roadblock to Nasser's ambition to dominate the Arab world.

Tried to Mend Rift

Morocco sought to patch up the quarrel.

The feud flared up Saturday when Tunisia broke up an Arab League meeting in Cairo by accusing some big Arab nations of trying to dominate the 10-nation group.

Dr. Mokkadem told newsmen in Tunis there were two main reasons for the action in Cairo: Interference by the U.A.R. in Tunisian internal affairs and U.A.R. support for a group of Tunisians hostile to Bourguiba's government, particularly Salah Ben Youssef.

Tunisia accused the U.A.R. last March of aiding Youssef in a plot to assassinate Bourguiba.

The two men led Tunisia's independence movement against France but split in 1956 when Bourguiba favored a moderate, pro-western course.

Shop Owners End General Strike and Conditions Are Returning to Normal

BY TOM MASTERSON

Beirut — A new 4-man cabinet representing the main factions in the Lebanese civil war was formed today. Peace at once returned to Beirut.

A general strike of shopkeepers ended and the business district started back to normal. Armed civilian gangs began dismantling street barricades.

The specter of war between Moslems and Christians appeared to have subsided.

The new government cannot solve any of the little nation's long-term problems. But it may cool tempers and restore order so that these problems can be settled politically, and not in street battles and terrorism.

Former President Camille Chamoun, whose Christian followers had led the latest uprising against Premier Rashid Karami, was quoted as saying the new cabinet was formed with his "full backing and approval."

Although he supports the cabinet in principle, Chamoun said his party will await the government's policy declaration.

Edde Gemayel

decision before reaching a final decision on whether to vote its confidence. Chamoun's national liberal party is the largest single bloc in parliament.

A close friend of Chamoun dictated his views to the Associated Press.

Forced Out Cabinet

Karami, a leader of the rebellion against Chamoun, remains premier, but his deputy premier is Pierre Gemayel, leader of the pro-Chamoun Phalangist party. The party's 3-week strike had closed most business houses and brought down Karami's first cabinet.

The other two members are Hussein Oweini, whose national front spearheaded the rebellion against Chamoun, and Raymond Edde, a neutral who had tried to mediate the civil war.

The new government called on all citizens to "resume work and restore order to Lebanon and return to a normal life." The east Mediterranean Arab state has been torn by violence since May 10. Lately the situation has grown uglier with daily slayings and kidnappings.

The Lebanese Federation of Free Trade Unions, dominated by Phalangists, called off a strike scheduled today for 20,000 workers to support Phalangist demands for a place in the new government.

Strike Continued

Karami formed his first cabinet Sept. 24 of rebel associates and neutrals. The Phalangists demanded representation in the government and fought Karami much as he had Chamoun. Faced last week with certain defeat on a parliamentary vote of confidence, Karami offered his resignation to President Fuad Chehab. Chehab refused to accept the resignation and threatened to form a military government unless the contending parties got together.

Karami will act as minister of finance, economy, defense and information in his own cabinet. Gemayel is minister of public works, education, health and agriculture in addition to being deputy premier.

Oweini is minister of foreign affairs, justice and planning. Edde was named minister of the interior, social affairs and post and telegraph.

Karami told a reporter his government's foreign policy will be one of "neutrality and friendship for all Arab states — the same as I outlined in a policy statement when I formed the previous cabinet."

Gemayel said he was joining the cabinet only temporarily and would resign as soon as the country is back to normal.

Algerian Rightists Call For General Protest Strike

Algiers — Rightist politicians in Algeria called for a general strike tomorrow afternoon during demonstrations protesting Premier De Gaulle's order banning the French army from politics in the North African territory.

In Paris, Gen. Raoul Salan, the military governor of Algeria, and Gen. Paul Ely, commander of all French forces, met with De Gaulle and the cabinet. It was assumed the premier was impressing on them his determination to reimpose the government's authority over the army in Algeria.

Civilian members of the central committee of public safety for Algeria, who revolted off the May 13 revolt against the fourth republic that brought De Gaulle back to power, raised the threat of a similar rebellion against De Gaulle.

The Algerian politicians, already openly dissatisfied with DeGaulle's overtures to the Algerian Moslems, said they would "continue their fight for the objectives of May 13" — integration of Algeria into France, which would preserve French control.

De Gaulle in his order said he acted to insure that the election Nov. 23 of Algerian representatives to the French national assembly would be held "under conditions of absolute freedom and sincerity" and so that candidates of "all tendencies" could compete. This was taken as an invitation to the nationalist rebels who have been fighting for independence for four years.

East Germany Asks Physicians To Return Home

Berlin — Communist East Germany today virtually begged hundreds of its doctors who have fled westward to return to their practices in the satellite nation.

Prof. Kurt Hager, a secretary of the communist party's central committee, made the plea as a critical shortage of hospital physicians and family doctors was reported from all over East Germany.

Nearly 500 doctors have fled the satellite since the beginning of this year because of political interference in their professional and private lives.

In an article in Neues Deutschland, the official party organ, Hager promised: "Every doctor who returns will receive work, leading doctors will receive appropriate positions, and private practitioners will again have the right to conduct their own practices."

Hager sharply criticized communist officials who compelled doctors to take up political work after they had completed a 10 to 14 hour work day.

Strike in Britain May Delay Flights

London — A BOAC strike today threatened the British Comet jetliner in its tussle with America's Boeing 707 for the Atlantic jet passenger trade.

Officials of British Overseas Airways Corp. said they would not be able to meet their Nov. 14 schedule for starting daily Comet trips across the Atlantic.

That could give Pan American Airways a clear field when it puts the Boeing 707 on a daily New York - London run Nov. 17.

The Comet IV jet is now making weekly Atlantic flights. On Oct. 4 the plane made the first trans-Atlantic jet crossing with paying passengers — an event acclaimed in Britain as a knock for the American jets.

Find Plane Wreck In Venezuela

Maracaibo, Venezuela — The wreckage of a Venezuelan plane with 23 persons aboard has been sighted on a river bank about 50 miles northwest of Maracaibo, reports reaching here said today.

The Venezuelan Airlines (L.A.V.) Superconstellation, vanished last night near the Maracaibo airport on a flight from Panama to Caracas.

The report sent by a searching party said there were no signs of life near the wreckage.

There were no Americans among the 17 passengers. The plane carried a crew of six.

Cites Experiences

Hammarskjold said experience with the different forms of U.N. intervention in Egypt, Lebanon and Jordan had shown the need for flexibility.

"In each new conflict situation in which the United Nations might be called upon to intervene with military personnel," he said, "the nature of the actual organization required and its paramilitary aspects would be determined by the particular needs of the situation and could not, therefore, be anticipated in advance."

United Nations, N.Y. — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold today recommended that the U.N. assembly set up standby arrangements to get military forces from member countries quickly to meet specific "conflict situations."

Hammarskjold made his recommendation in a 24,000-word report on the U.N.'s experience with its emergency force (UNEF) in Egypt.

His plan somewhat resembled suggestions Secretary of State Dulles made to the assembly Sept. 18 for standby arrangements for a U.N. peace force.

The secretary general's proposal seemed certain to draw criticism from the Soviet Union. The Soviet bloc has refused to pay its allotted share of UNEF's expenses, contending the assembly usurped the security council's authority in creating that force. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has attacked Dulles' suggestions.

Appeal Proposal to Shift Space Talent

Top Army Missile Chiefs Object To Surrendering Its Personnel To Federal Civilian Space Agency

Washington—A—Top army missile chiefs planned a direct appeal to President Eisenhower today to protest a request that the army surrender its major space talent and facilities to the new civilian space agency.

Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, head of the army's ordnance missile command, flew into Washington last night soon after disclosure of the request from the national aeronautics and space administration.

It was learned Medaris asked secretary of the army William M. Brucker to arrange an appointment with Eisenhower for this morning.

There was no immediate comment from the White House.

spokesmen said they had to remain tight lipped. But they said loss of such key scientists as Von Braun could seriously undermine the army's advanced work on military missiles—such as the Zeus anti-missile missile.

Support Work

These officials also voiced fear that the loss of key space experts might relegate the army missile agency to doing mere support work for the civilian space agency.

NASA, created this year by congress to take over aspects of space exploration and pioneering that have no direct military bearing, was established Oct. 1.

Until Dec. 31, the agency has the authority—if the president so directs—to tap the military services for space personnel and facilities. After Dec. 31, any such transfer will require congressional approval.

Front Doors Too Drab, Women Tell Builders

Washington—A—More take the medicine cabinet off the wall above the sink—where bottles can fall out and break, and put it somewhere else—with a lock to keep youngsters from getting into it. Over the sink in its place, they advised, a big mirror.

U-shaped kitchens were preferred and just nobody seemed to want a rotisserie as part of the kitchen equipment.

They'd rather have natural wood instead of steel cabinets. Steel is too cold looking and shows finger marks, was the reason they gave.

The women had answers for lots of queries, and when asked what the warranty on an appliance means, one woman quipped:

Pakistan Shoppers Rush to Stores for Bargain Items

Karachi, Pakistan—A violent shaking of the black market tree by Pakistan's martial law administration is bringing out record shopping crowds to catch imported plums at bargain prices.

Shops throughout Karachi are jammed with items which last week were only longed-for but overpriced luxuries.

A tea set which formerly sold at 140 rupees is now fetching 75. A jar of imported cold cream is selling at four rupees compared with seven a few days ago.

Imported textiles fell anywhere up to 60 per cent. This brought sometimes an almost equal decrease in price of Pakistani textiles.

The massive turnout of shoppers led the martial law administrator for Karachi to ask citizens to restrict buying to immediate needs.

Nixon Cheers California GOP With Report

Declares Swell of Democratic Strength Is Falling From Peak

San Francisco—A—Vice President Nixon brought a message intended to cheer on California Republicans in his second campaign visit in two weeks.

He told a $100-a-plate Republican dinner Tuesday night there has been a sharp upturn in Republican prospects throughout the country since his last tour of his home state.

"These next three weeks will determine the result in California," he said.

Fight of Lives

"If we step up our campaign and make the fight of our lives we shall elect our entire Republican ticket this November."

Sen. William F. Knowland, fighting an uphill battle for governor, asserted flatly, "we will carry this election."

The vice president, with Knowland on his left and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight on his right, spoke of the campaign as a great cause — "bigger than any differences between Republicans."

That was close as he has come to any public reference to the split between Knowland and Knight. Knight gave up his quest for reelection and became the GOP nominee for the senate after Knowland entered the gubernatorial race.

Predicts Man Will Reach Moon

Chicago—A—Man on the moon in 12 years. So predicts Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, army missile chief.

Medaris, commanding general of the U. S. army missile command in Huntsville, Ala., made the prediction Monday at a news conference at the national electronics conference.

Knowland said his answer to the questioners is that he doesn't believe in sacrificing principle for expediency.

He said that unless Americans were willing to raise controversial issues, this country never would have gained its independence or abolished slavery.

Nixon declared the Democratic tide has reached its peak throughout the nation and is now "melting away."

Delegates to Lutheran Convention Endorse Merger Proposition

Action Will Create Church With More Than 3 Million Members

Dayton, Ohio—A—Delegates to the United Lutheran Church in America convention yesterday overwhelmingly approved a merger of the ULCA and three small Lutheran churches.

The approval of the merger, termed the most significant action taken at the twenty-first biennial convention, will create a church with more than three million members.

A name for the new organization has not been determined.

New Constitution

Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, ULCA president, said the constitution and by-laws for the new church will be ready by the 1960 convention. He said he hopes the merger will go into effect at that time.

The three smaller churches involved in the merger are the Augustana Lutheran church, the Finnish Lutheran church and the American Evangelical Lutheran church.

They have a combined membership of more than 3,000,000. ULCA's membership is 2,400,000.

A report of the joint commission on Lutheran unity—representing the four merging churches—was approved earlier this year by the three smaller churches.

The merger whose path has now been cleared is in no way connected with the proposed joining of forces by three other Lutheran bodies. The other proposed merger to form a 2-million-member Lutheran group involves the 973,000 - member American Lutheran church, the million-member Evangelical Lutheran church and the 65,000-member United Evangelical Lutheran church.

The constitution to be drawn as a result of ULCA's promerger vote last night will be submitted to ULCA's 32 synods early in 1961 provided of course, the 1960 convention approves it. As soon as 22 of the synods add their approval, it can go into force, Dr. Fry, said. He added:

"Union with the other churches that will also have accepted it can then take place at any time. The new day will have dawned. The church of the future will be ready to be born."

With a single dissenting vote, the ULCA convention adopted new, affirmative statement on racial integration. The new statement says ULCA "is sensitive to the present challenges and opportunities in the realm of human relations and is conscious of its responsibility to provide leadership in this realm."

Taxation Problems are Simple on the Stump

John W. Reynolds, Democratic nominee for attorney general, told the state convention of the Wisconsin Towns association that the Republican administration is responsible for high property taxes in Wisconsin. He said the Republicans now in office have exhausted the possibilities of shifting any more of the tax burden to low income groups through the device of property taxes, and now propose to hit those groups through the device of a sales tax. Both forms of taxation — the property and the sales tax — are repugnant to the principle of taxation based on ability to pay, Reynolds said.

Reynolds appears to have taken over the task of discussing the tax issue for the Democratic party in Wisconsin. This is a bit unusual since, should he be elected attorney general, he will have little to do with finding the money to operate the state in the two years ahead. That will be up to the governor, but the Democratic candidate for governor has not been permitted to have his way on this question.

The original platform proposal for the party included a hedge against the necessity of finding some new way of raising the needed revenue. The hedge was said to be the work of Gaylord Nelson, the candidate for governor, who has some familiarity with state finances and wanted a little leeway financially should he be elected. However, Sen. Proxmire, who obviously feels much of his political success has hinged on his unyielding opposition to a sales tax, and others in the party objected to any slightest hint that a sales tax might some day be necessary. In addition Reynolds made his opposition to a sales tax the major topic of his primary campaign and ran very well indeed. Since it is votes that count in elections and Reynolds had the votes, he also had his way in putting the party solidly against the sales tax.

The question left open for speculation is what means of taxation is to be employed if, as Reynolds suggests, the property tax is to be lowered and a sales tax avoided.

The suggestion is that the Democrats will be able to lower property taxes and make up the loss in revenue by increasing the income tax on individuals and corporations. This may not be as easy as saying it. Wisconsin has the fourth highest income tax rates in the country on individuals and corporations. Only Idaho, Oregon and Minnesota have higher rates on corporations, and only Oregon, North Dakota and Minnesota have higher rates on individuals. The report is for 1956 but the facts are probably not much different today.

About 96 per cent of Wisconsin's income taxpayers have incomes of less than $6,000 and they receive 80 per cent of the taxable income. But they pay only 35 per cent of the tax. The remaining 4 per cent of the income taxpayers, with incomes above $6,000, receive 20 per cent of the taxable income and pay 65 per cent of the tax.

Most students of the tax problem believe that it would be very difficult if not impossible to load much more than 65 per cent of the tax bill onto the over-$6,000 income group in the face of the much higher rates they now pay the federal government. Thus it is pointed out that any increase in income tax revenues must come from the low income group. Boosting rates on that group will not be much more pleasant politically than levying a sales tax, and could be more damaging in effect.

The property tax and the sales tax are regressive as Reynolds says. However it should be noted that no state has been able to avoid some regressive taxes. No one has seriously proposed to eliminate the property tax. Wisconsin has clung to the personal property tax rather than increase the income tax although the personal property tax is notoriously unfair.

A majority of the states have turned to the sales tax out of necessity. Many of them have chosen the sales tax in preference to the income tax although the income tax would appear to have the greatest appeal on the ground of fairness. Many of these states, incidentally, have Democratic governors and legislatures. But in tax matters as in many other fields theory and practice have different results.

Every tax has its faults and likewise its virtues. The best governed state is the one which bases its tax program on all available forms of taxes and applies each tax to the greatest advantage of its people. It is folly to oppose a sales tax and advocate instead a corporation tax. For nothing is so clear as the fact that taxes on corporations are handed right on to the consumer and hit the same fellow and in the same way as a sales tax. For any single state to raise corporation taxes would be utter folly in this day of intense competition for industry and the jobs it provides.

We have a notion the people of Wisconsin would like to hear a candidate for the office of governor discuss the financial problems of the state frankly, and the advantages and disadvantages of the various tax methods. Perhaps if the people really understood the relationship between taxes and industrial expansion and recognized also the financial needs of the state, they might be able to vote more intelligently for their own jobs rather than for the few jobs the politicians are seeking.

Why Everybody Hates Us

The Associated Press, distressed and startled like most of us by the outrageous attacks on the Nixons a few months ago, assigned reporters from Abyssinia to Zanzibar to find out why the peoples of the world don't like us.

The answers are interesting and often amusing, but hardly enlightening. One might as well ask why the Democrats don't like the Republicans and vice versa; or why we have it in for the Germans, English and French. One might even ask why these sensible peoples seem unperturbed by our likes and dislikes as individuals.

Like the six blind men of Indostan who went to see the elephant, the man on the street, in the jungle and on the desert has come up with the answers. Here's why some of them don't like us: and, knowing their answers, it's up to us to mend international relations:

We are slaves to our women, and let them "imagine they are angels descended from heaven" . . . and they wear gloves as if they thought "their palms are lined with gold and diamonds."

The men take care of the children. A mechanic in Morocco was amazed to see an American on a picnic doing the cooking and washing the baby in the lake.

A Spanish bus conductor finds that our literature, which he can't read, isn't so hot, and our movies show us ingenuous and even childish.

A Zulu in South Africa has the notion that the United States must be a better place than his country, for he's been told that the American Negro is no different than the white man.

A young woman artist in Rome likes most of the Americans she dates, but almost all ask about her politics. She says Italians don't like to be investigated.

A bartender in Indonesia knows America is fighting communism, but only selfishly in order to run the world and its economy.

A cook in Cairo says that everybody says Americans are imperialistic and are trying to impose their will on small nations.

A herdsman of water buffalo and cattle at New Delhi says America wants more land to park cars and bury the dead.

A Parisian nightwatchman has his own ideas. "Money and power run the world," he says, "and the Americans have money and power."

Now you know why we, as a nation, are unpopular. And the returns from Russia aren't in yet.

The Sales Tax Polled

One of the outstanding political stories of the Wisconsin campaign season was developed by Ed Bayley, a member of the staff of the Milwaukee Journal.

Through ways that a resourceful reporter can be pardoned for declining to disclose, Bayley discovered that the Wisconsin CIO earlier this season had subsidized a commercial polling organization to take stock of public, or more particularly, electoral opinion in Wisconsin on a number of topics in which the CIO moguls had a particular interest.

He had a clean scoop. We have watched the liberal prints of the state diligently for several weeks and nobody has yet acknowledged that the CIO found out some enormously interesting things about the state of Wisconsin opinion, including a virtually even division on the issue of a sales tax as a means of balancing the traditional property and income tax revenue scheme.

As our own Madison correspondent, who alone acknowledged this scoop of a fellow journeyman, has remarked, this must have been a bill that was extremely hard for Mr. Schultz and his fellow commanders of the CIO to pay.

As readers of these columns have apprehended, we are convinced that the trend of public expenditures, necessary and probable, in Wisconsin is such that the standard revenue scheme will break under it.

We have paid our compliments to those politicians — the overwhelming majority in both parties — who have stubbornly or cravenly or ignorantly ignored the plain implications of the spending figures, and who have committed themselves to ever increasing levels of spending without facing up to the fiscal facts of life in the state treasury.

Thus we find a certain irony in this discomfiture of the CIO and its totally unexpected finding in a public opinion survey it has carefully suppressed. The politicians of Wisconsin who would be leaders — who are leaders if their offices are accorded the dignity and power they imply — find themselves followers. They have run like sheep from a terror that is far less fearful than they had imagined in their desperation.

There lies before any courageous and realistic Wisconsin politician a beckoning opportunity to make of state finance a career-building issue, and to serve his community well in the bargain.

What Others are Saying

Believes Place to Stop Aggression Is Formosa, Not Off-Shore Islands

From The Chicago Daily News

The Far East crisis centered on Quemoy and Formosa still shows no sign of lifting. Pessimism hangs over the ambassadorial talks in Warsaw and warlike preparations have been intensified on Formosa.

The gloom is not relieved when such an experienced hand as Keyes Beech of the Daily News Foreign Service warns that the time is near when "the United States must make good its pledge to defend Quemoy or free Chiang Kai-shek to do the job himself — if he can."

Quemoy, cut off by red artillery, is living on borrowed time. It cannot be adequately supplied unless the siege is lifted, and lifting it means direct attacks on the Chinese mainland.

Yet an attack on the mainland, either by Chiang or by U. S. forces, is a step from which there would be no returning.

This is the impasse to which Dulles' diplomacy has led us. The moral posturing that took Quemoy under the U. S. wing has so far outstripped the military realities that we are making a stand against communism at a point that is militarily indefensible. Quemoy is of no real value either to nationalist China or the United States in defending Formosa.

Ike Convinced There is considerable evidence to the effect that Eisenhower did not want to draw the line at Quemoy. But after listening to Secy. Dulles' moral precepts about our commitments to Chiang and our mission to hold the line in the Far East, he let the Dulles arguments override his qualms on the military aspects.

For both the reds and the nationalist Chinese, the battle for the offshore islands is but another phase in the continuing Chinese civil war. Both Mao Tse-tung and Chiang Kai-shek claim all of China, including the small islands and Formosa.

Since, out of deference to Chiang, we have never conceded that China is divisible it is awkward to deny that the reds have a "moral" claim on Quemoy equally as good as Chiang's.

The Dulles doctrine, that communism by its very nature is evil and must be stopped, has much support in this country. Practical considerations may also argue for drawing a line somewhere and telling the Communists they must not cross it.

These two factors would have converged and solidified had the line been drawn at Formosa. The congressional resolution of 1955 provided specific authority for defending that island.

But extending the line to cover Quemoy, as Dulles has done, has had the effect of ignoring practical considerations in pursuit of a theoretical objective. The same rigid attitude crops up in the indignant "rejection" of Nikita Khrushchev's letter to President Eisenhower. It was sent back "unopened" because it used offensive words. Yet in many parts of the world the act of rejection will be interpreted as harsher than any words the president might have used in reply.

The main theme of all the Dulles pronouncements is that the communists must renounce the use of force. He is being so threatening in repeating this theme that it will be little short of miraculous if he avoids forcing the reds into a corner from which force offers the only escape.

Deficit for 1957 May Set Record

From The New Orleans Times-Picayune

Local governments in this country, notes the census bureau, "spent and took in more money in 1957 than ever before" — and also found themselves $39 billion in debt at the year's end; another record that maybe will be broken this year.

Looking Backward

Nut Gathering Party Described

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Oct. 18, 1879.

Kaukauna — Wandering through the "pathless woods" which gay October has adorned with robes of golden splendor, dashed here and there with vermilion and brown, the reverie induced by the Sunday quiet was suddenly dissipated by the hum of many voices.

Hurrying to the openings and emerging at the top of the hill, an immense crowd was seen, carrying bags, baskets, buckets, clubs and poles. They were making their way to the heavily laden hickory trees. Vehicles of every kind were on the ground, wheelbarrows and handcarts.

One ambitious damsel had mounted to the topmost branch of one of the tallest trees, and clinging with her feet in some unexplicable manner as she swayed to and fro, vigorously belabored the branches with both hands. The nuts fell like rain under the well directed blows.

People collected in different places; they swarmed up and down the hill and the sound of "dropping nuts was heard."

25 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, Oct. 11, 1933

Seven Appleton High school students, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kircher, were to leave that day as the high school's delegates to the National Scholastic Press association convention in Chicago. They were Miss Virginia Steffensen, Joseph and John Kofend, James Morrow, Arthur Remley, Howard Horton and Miss Lola May Zuelke.

The Rev. R. A. Garrison, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian church, was elected moderator of the Wisconsin Synod of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. Helen Schoetz, Menasha, was elected grand regent of the Catholic Daughters. Others elected were Mrs. Alice Broeren, vice grand regent, Mrs. Kathrine Schmalz, prophetess, Mrs. Mabel Schierl, monitor, Mrs. Edna Loomans, lecturer, Mrs. Ella Bach, historian, Mrs. Hannah Corry, treasurer, and Mrs. Emma Luka, financial secretary.

Workmen at the Neenah Manufacturers bank vault that noon touched off the burglar alarm leading residents in the vicinity to believe a burglary was in progress. Police officers arrived at once. The alarm sounded for 15 minutes until the vault could be opened and the electric connection cut.

Glynn Roehr, Appleton, was elected president of the Roosevelt Junior High school ninth grade. Other officers were Jack King, vice president; Pat Petersen, secretary, and Dick Bauerfiend, treasurer.

Money Shortage Slows Campaign Activities

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — A shortage of money is crimping both political parties as their drive for power and office enters the final round.

There is a fiction, a throw-back to earlier times in Wisconsin when it tended to be a one party state, that the Republicans have plenty of money and the Democrats are chronically distressed.

Actually the parties are more equal in financial resources today than they have been during their whole history — considering the state as a whole and making allowances for local situations — but both are having their difficulties raising the kind of budgets that realists in their headquarters know are required for today's circumstances and conditions.

In each headquarters there is a good deal of anxious talk about the causes. One of the most obvious and important is that price inflation has affected the cost of political campaigns as it has every other human need.

By past standards, the Republicans are in fairly good shape financially.

By past standards, the Democrats are affluent. But it costs more to run a good campaign today than ever before.

There are some ironic complaints from the neccessitous candidates. One Democratic candidate for high office, schooled in the idea that spending in politics is bad, calmly related to this correspondent the other day that he is trying to arrange a $40,000 budget for radio and television alone.

Another was asked what he thought would be a minimum amount to "tell his story", as he put it, and he guessed he ought to have a $100,000. Nor are these extravagant sums, except as they may appear so to the uninitiated. An effective and organized campaign today is frightfully expensive.

There is a counter-balancing irony in the complaint of a Republican congressman who offered this reporter a ride the other day between campaign stops. The campaign publicity tabloid, mailed out to all households, is one of the oldest fixtures of Wisconsin politics. Everybody has seen his mail box stuffed with such materials in the past. But the deluge may be lighter this fall. This congressman, quite acceptable as a Republican, finds that he cannot afford such a publication this year because of the boost in mailing and printing costs.

MEANING

There was a time when a comparatively few big contributors could keep a party solvent — in simpler and cheaper days. The big contributors are more scarce. High personal income taxes have evidently had their effect, as some of the politicians are reluctantly acknowledging.

There are many candidates and party managers, moreover, who have ethical reservations about the big contributor and worry about unfavorable voter reactions. But as the cost of campaigns continues to increase, the question becomes more pertinent: Who will support them?

It is easy to say that there ought to be more small contributors. Abstractly considered, one hundred $10 givers would be preferred, in any party, to a single $1,000 donor. But the reality is that people don't give spontaneously to a political party. They must be asked. And asking them is a costly business on its own account. The recent "Dollars for Democrats" drive was good publicity, but it didn't amount to much in getting money into the party's till. The Republicans, perhaps with more experience and realism, didn't even pretend to take part in the bi-partisan campaign sponsored by the American Heritage Foundation to democratize the campaign financing problem.

Reds Again Reveal Their Hypocrisy

From The Atlanta Constitution

Russia's pious claims to atomic morality are, to use a current phrase, as phony as a 3-dollar bill. But nonetheless they will be effective in Europe and, for that matter, in this country, too.

The Soviets have resumed testing A-bombs.

They announce to the world that they do so sorrowfully, but that the imperialistic United States, trying to blackmail the world with its might, continues to seek a military advantage against the wishes of the peace-loving peoples of the world.

Also, they renew their demands for a parity looking toward a ban of such weapons "forever."

The truth is that we suggested the Oct. 31 ban. The Russians had already finished and were satisfied with their exhaustive tests carried on in remote Siberia. To this day they have made no detailed announcement of their tests. The United States has advertised each one in advance and has given results.

The Russians, after they had seen our schedule and only after they had seen it, began to seek an earlier "quitting" time.

Now they say, with complete hypocrisy, they are being "forced to resume."

This is a deliberately false picture. It will, however, prove of some temporary propaganda advantage to them. But if we move firmly and with common sense toward a cessation of such tests, the ultimate victory will be ours. Only the totally uninformed believe the United States has any aggression in its plans for the future.

country's long term interests are better served if that sort of thing is not indulged in.

On a related matter dealing with this country's position regarding defense of Quemoy, Eisenhower said he does not decry any intelligent criticism of any particular point. When it comes to policy, he said, that has been standing on its own feet for a long time.

Eisenhower backed away from an Oct. 6 statement by Republican leaders saying the clear alternative to election of a Republican - controlled congress is nationalization and socialization of American industry under the Democrats.

Midwest Tour

Asked whether he subscribed to that statement, he replied he had read the full statement before it was made public and does not remember that exact language.

The president said his recollection is that the statement said the country could be led to the left and such a course could lead eventually to socialism.

As for the 6-day campaign tour to the midwest and Pacific coast he will start Friday, Eisenhower said the itinerary has been arranged so that he can, through regional television and radio, reach the greatest number of people possible in those areas. He made that statement when asked why he is going into such states as Iowa, Kansas, Colorado and Illinois where there are no U. S. senate races, and is passing up Minnesota and Wisconsin where there are such races.

Grimming, Eisenhower asked the inquiring reporter whether he was begrudging a visit to his boyhood home town of Abilene, Kan., and whether there were any objections to his and Mrs. Eisenhower's visiting Denver to see her mother.

Another question regarding the forthcoming tour was whether Eisenhower will try in California to patch up differences between GOP Sen. William F. Knowland, who is running for governor, and Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, who is bidding for Knowland's senate seat.

Eisenhower made no direct reply on that. He said he is going to California in the interest of good government through Republicanism, and that he is supporting both Knowland and Knight.

His aims so far as federal spending is concerned, Eisenhower said, are to hold outlays in the defense field down to the last cent really needed. He said he believes we are spending too much, both now and in contemplation, and it is too bad we are thinking too little about thrift and economy.

Would Hurt Dollar

Spending of money, Eisenhower went on, is not going to solve the problem and it will depreciate the value of the dollar.

Asked how he feels about solicitation of money from Republicans by Joseph Kamp, a right wing pamphleteer, Eisenhower said he deplores hate mongering.

He mentioned that Sen. Knowland has repudiated Kamp, whose writings have figured in the California campaign.

As for Viscount Field Marshal Montgomery's assertion in his memoirs that World war II could have been won in 1944 rather than in May, 1945, Eisenhower — who was allied supreme commander at the time — said all the predictions at the time of the Normandy landings were that it would take at least two years to end the war. The president noted it actually was won in Europe in 11 months.

He added that Winston Churchill, who at the time was Britain's prime minister, expressed the view in 1944 that the allies would be doing well to liberate Paris by Christmas, 1944. The French capital actually was liberated in August that year.

Eisenhower said he has been criticized by many people who have written books, and probably will be in the future.

Sugar Waste Paper Process Big Business

Havana —(AP)— The making of paper out of bagasse sugar cane waste, is developing into big business in Cuba.

Cristobal Diaz, president of Technica Cubana, predicts production will hit two million tons annually.

The paper mill of Technica Cubana, near Cardenas, in Matanzas province, is the first devoted exclusively to making newsprint and other paper from 100 per cent sugar cane bagasse.

Some of Havana's newspapers already are being printed on bagasse paper.

Diaz, who is vice president of the company publishing the Newspaper El Pais, said: "By the first of December we expect to be in a position to serve all newspaper publishing firms in the country with a permanent stock of 3,000 tons in our Havana warehouse."

Cuban newsprint for all the island's papers would save the country about $6 million a year in foreign exchanges.

Joaquin De La Roza, a Cuban - American engineer, invented the current process of converting bagasse into newsprint.

He noted that the price of an ambulance into Roosevelt hospital in New York for emergency treatment. He was wounded in a gun battle with James Phelan, 41, an off-duty policeman who watched as Mullen and a companion held up a bar. Phelan received a wrist wound. Mullen's companion escaped.

Steinle Declares Senator Misinformed Wisconsin Citizens

By The Associated Press

Roland Steinle, Republican U. S. senate nominee, said in Milwaukee Tuesday the people of Wisconsin were misinformed, accidentally or intentionally, when his Democratic opponent said last spring the nation was headed for a full-scale depression.

Steinle contended Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., "tried to make the people lose confidence in our economic system and their country."

Republican Gov. Vernon Thomson said Tuesday night his Democratic opponent in the November election, Gaylord Nelson, has "made promises of a vastly increased spending that would require a minimum of 60 per cent more revenue." The governor spoke at a rally in his hometown, Richland Center.

The Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, Phil Leo Nash, said in Milwaukee Tuesday that "the integrity and fairness of the state have been undermined by the acts of Lt. Gov. Warren Knowles." Nash referred to an appearance by Knowles before the state industrial commission at a time when Knowles was acting governor.

Milo Singler, Democratic candidate for Congress in the eighth district, said Tuesday night that "recent congressional hearings emphasized the need for labor to protect the integrity of their organizations against unscrupulous leaders."

The comment was part of a speech in which he said, "Labor, small businessmen and farmers must stand together to protect the economic security of all." He spoke at Marinette.

History of Roman Catholic Church Shows Great Strength of Religion

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

New York—Whenever a new pope is to be elected, interest usually turns to the strength of the Roman Catholic church which survives attack from outside or weakness from within.

As history is now written, this is a young religion, not quite 2,000 years old. It is an particular church and there that the appearance of Jesus in Jerusalem and the spread of His doctrine by Paul and his associates among the peoples of the Roman empire.

"I've got a selfish motive," Esler continued. "I was born and raised in Outagamie county and I intend to stay here. If the center is built in this county, we'll find the land."

"It isn't just the building. It's the type of people it brings to our county that counts. Cities try to get industry and spend money to do it—here's a chance to get an industry in our county," Esler declared.

$6,000 Granted For Rewiring of Farm Buildings

A maximum of $6,000 for rewiring several buildings at the Outagamie county hospital was approved Tuesday by the county board. The money will come from the county's $403,800 contingency fund.

The rewiring is necessitated partly by deterioration of existing wiring and partly because new hospital wiring requires a change in all wiring. Architect George Narovec explained.

Buildings to be rewired include three dairy barns, hog and poultry houses, horse barn and machine shed. The board's executive committee was given power to approve the contract and probably will specify separate metering for the farm units.

Hospital Supt. Norbert Loeke told the board separate metering would give an accurate picture of current costs for the farm operation.

made the only formal site offer — 8.1 acres north of Highway 41 and east of High street.

Arthur A. Gustman, 222 Lawe street, Kaukauna, notified the board Tuesday that he owns adjoining property and is willing to donate any part of the three acres needed to make the site large enough for the UW extension. It lies west of Highway street.

Kaukauna has offered the site free of charge, including furnishing power, water, sewer services, police and fire protection.

Only other sites mentioned found by Jan. 1. An appropriation of $2,100 for the extension will be sought for the Valley Fair shopping center area south and east of Appletton and a tract just north of Menasha on Winnebago County Trunk P.

The appropriation, and the board unanimously, with seven members absent.

Board Wants City Nurse

Also to Look for Part-Time Health Commissioner

The board of health Tuesday decided to try to hire a city nurse to complement a part-time city health commissioner.

The move would do away with the city physician's post, vacant since Dr. William C. Felton resigned May 1.

Dr. Marvin S. Kagen some time ago expressed interest in the part-time health commissioner's post. Mayor Mitchell and Dr. Carl Neidhold, board chairman, will talk to him.

Appropriations of $4,000 each are requested of the council for the nurse and commissioner posts.

By Jan. 1 Since resignation of Dr. Felton, the city has been operating its health department through Deputy City Health Officer Claude N. Greisch.

The nurse, the board said, should probably receive a car allowance of $40 a month. She would be permitted to use the 11-secretary staff of Greisch.

The nurse will be required to have public health training. It is hoped one can be found by Jan. 1.

ed increase may mean loss of VNA services to the city government.

If the city nurse is hired, it was said the VNA contract may be terminated on a 15-day notice.

The board agreed the nurse and Greisch would be made responsible to the health commissioner if people are found for the two new posts.

Druggists will be asked to report orders for prescriptions from city relief cases and other city sources to the relief director on a standard form, the board decided.

Ghost Frosh Seek 2nd Spot In Loop Action

Roosevelt Will Furnish Test in Last Home Game

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna High school frosh griders will play their second and final league game at home at 4 p.m. Thursday with Roosevelt of Appleton as competition.

The teams are deadlocked for second place in the standings, both with records of two wins and one defeat. Kaukauna has defeated Kimberly 13 to 6 and Wilson 20 to 15 while losing to Neenah 18 to 0. Roosevelt dumped Menasha 14 to 0, defeated Kimberly 39 to 6 and lost to Neenah 6 to 0.

Kaukauna will be entering the game as underdogs as the defending champion Roosevelt squad has a free scoring unit with several outstanding players. Coach Noel Duffate has been stressing offense in this week's drills as the team missed several opportunities to score in the Kimberly tilt last week.

Roosevelt has been strong defensively in all its games, forcing Neenah to come through in the final minutes of the game before giving up a touchdown. Last year the invaders handed the Ghost frosh their only defeat, 13 to 6. Only one game remains to be played after Thursday's encounter.

245-641 Pace Major League

Board Studies Expenditures For '59 Budget

Entrance Repairs, Tower Removal Two Main Work Projects

Kaukauna — Discussions on major money expenditures which must be provided for in the 1959 school budget consumed the major share of the evening at a meeting of the board of education Tuesday.

T. H. Boebel, superintendent of schools, was told to incorporate $6,000 into the budget for repair of the outside entranceways at the high school. The board earlier this year had asked estimates for repairing approaches to the high school but were unable to start the project as funds were not available.

The superintendent was authorized to get estimates, in writing, for the removal of an old tower at Nicolet school and to find out prices for new curtains and drapes for the high school auditorium and add these figures to his 1959 budget.

Build Passageway

Board members approved the building of a passageway in a corridor at the high school which will help solve some of the traffic problems at the school by giving the building a third way to reach the basement floor. Money for the work will be added to the 1959 budget.

Other items the superintendent was authorized to incorporate in the budget were new furniture for a study hall at the high school and some minor work at Park and Nicolet schools which was not figured in the remodeling project.

A special meeting is to be called with the school architect in an effort to get him to hasten construction progress. Board members complained about the slowdown of work on school additions and want the architect to remedy the situation.

Fence Problem

A meeting is also planned with the city engineer and members of the board of public works as school commissioners hope to solve a fence problem at Park school. The fence encloses the school yard but since street construction work completed last year, it has been practically impossible for the janitor to work on school walks. Snow from the street in winter is thrown onto the sidewalk and the maintenance man has nowhere to throw the snow as the fence hinders him.

Board members would like the fence moved back slightly or replaced and a gate or other entrance provided to make it possible for oil trucks to service the school.

Board members will take a day next week to visit music stores and schools in Appleton prior to purchasing six pianos. Four of the new pianos will be used in kindergarten rooms. A piano will also be purchased for the auditorium. A report on additional insurance for students to supplement W. I. A. A. insurance was given by the superintendent but board members agreed not to incorporate the auxiliary insurance at the present time.

Halloween Party Planned For School Age Children

Kaukauna — All youngsters of school age in Kaukauna are invited to participate in the Oct. 31 Halloween party at the two theaters sponsored by the recreation department and Modern Woodmen of America.

The invitation was made by James A. Gertz, recreation director, who said this year's event will be geared to prove especially attractive to school children. Festivities will get underway at 6:30 p. m. at which time costumes will be judged and souvenirs and refreshments distributed.

Witch Wagon

As in previous years the "witch wagon" will be used in an effort to encourage youngsters to go directly home after the party. One-half hour after the party the witches will stop at five different homes to see whether youngsters have arrived. Special prizes will be awarded children found to be home.

Souvenir refreshments, and prizes are being donated by the Modern Woodmen. Last year's party attracted 500 youngsters and Gertz expects an even larger turnout this year. He urged parents and school authorities to encourage children to participate in the party to promote a safe, enjoyable and sensible Halloween.

Mrs. Viola Wisthoff and Alan Fraser, local representatives of the sponsoring society said, "Modern Woodmen of America is sponsoring similar costume parties in hundreds of communities in the United States as a part of its program for furthering the general welfare of the youth of the nation, and in conformity with its policy of contributing to local community progress."

Economic Upturn Could Win for GOP

Many Voters Still Seem to Identify Democrats With War

BY SAMUEL LUBELL

One of the more significant changes in the political temper of the country that the current campaign has brought is a sharpening of the cleavage between workers and employers. Two years ago the dominant trends of peace and prosperity operated to blur over and conciliate this depression-born hostility. In many worker neighborhoods I visited the then Democratic attacks on big business were shrugged off as echoes of a dead era. Asked what they saw as the big difference between the two parties, many labor union members and their wives replied, "It used to be that the Republicans had no use for the working man but that's not true any more."

ishing lunch. When I began talking about economic conditions the husband rose abruptly and stalked out of the room in obvious anger. His wife apologized, "He's been out of work for months. He wouldn't vote Republican again."

She herself, though, was sticking with the Republicans. "I guess it's the way they say," she exclaimed. "If the Republicans are in we have hard times. But the Democrats bring war. I'd rather go hungry."

Powerful Factor

This tendency of many voters to link prosperity with war may seem puzzling, but it must be put down as one of the more powerful factors in American political life. No campaigning is ever required for voters to link the two. On the morning after President Eisenhower sent troops into Lebanon I was doing some interviewing in Anderson, Ind. Asked what she thought of the Middle Eastern situation one housewife replied, "I hope they're not going to try to end the recession with a war."

So widespread was this sense of good feeling that in 1956 Eisenhower was able to sweep most of the big cities, leaving the strongholds of New Deal voting strength.

During this campaign, however, many workers, including those who voted for Eisenhower, have changed their tune. When asked, "What do the parties stand for?" the replies ran along these lines:

"Give me a Republican and the economy goes sour. It never fails." Or, "The Democrats are for the little people. The Republicans stand for money."

Big Business

Nor is this hostility limited solely to members of organized labor. Among farmers and the smaller merchants, as well, one hears the common complaint that "all the Republicans think of is big business. They've forgotten us."

The strength of this anti-business sentiment points to one crucial weakness in the current White House effort to convince the electorate the GOP is the party around which all conservative voters should rally. Some of the Republican campaigning seems to assume the cause of business and conservatism is identical. But too heavy an emphasis on free enterprise could alienate many voters to whom conservatism means a simply lower taxes, less government spending and an end to inflation.

Actually, my interviews in 15 states show the most effective single barrier to the Democratic tide is the feeling that "jobs may be better under the Democrats they always get us into wars."

In the Los Angeles suburb of Huntington Park, for example, at one house I visited the husband, wife and an 8-year-old son were just finishing lunch. When I began talking about economic conditions the husband rose abruptly and stalked out of the room in obvious anger. His wife apologized, "He's been out of work for months. He wouldn't vote Republican again."

Economic Grievance

In the current campaign the sense of economic grievance seems top-heavy. But, particularly in the past three weeks, there has been a noticeable shift in the responses of people to whom I have been talking. Concern over economic conditions has dropped and the fear of war in the Far East has tended to become the No. 1 issue in people's minds.

To sum up, the peace issue still does not seem to be outweighing the political effects of the recession. If, however, the effects of economic recovery become more widely felt and the nation remains at peace, the Republicans are likely to pick up additional strength.

Thomson says — "I will spare no effort to prevent the Democrat candidate from depriving your sons and daughters of adequate higher education. I'll fight the Democrat policy of deficit spending and huge public debt."

Tells Results of Fertilizer Test On Grain Section

Oshkosh — Results of a grain fertilizer plot test made on the Donald Fischer farm near Pickett were announced today by Donald J. Tripp, assistant agricultural agent.

Applications of different amounts of 0-20-20 and 0-10-30 were made. Samples of grain were harvested and the official yield check made at the University of Wisconsin.

The 0-20-20 strips averaged 66 bushel per acre while the 0-10-30 strips averaged almost 70 bushel per acre. Where no fertilizer was applied the average yield was 56 bushels.

Soil testing can be done in the fall as well as in the spring. Tripp mentioned and said fall testing had several advantages. The farmer can have his field recommendations early to know the right kind and amount of fertilizer needed.

Only a cupful of soil is needed for each composite sample and this is sent to the university soils department. One composite sample for each five acres is the general rule, he cited.

In lieu of alimony, the court divides the household furniture and the car and boat. The husband is to pay her attorney's fees. A service station will be erected at that site.

Lions Probably Live Longer In Captivity Than in Wilds

BY RAMON COFFMAN

It is a bit hard to keep track of lions in their native state, and to learn how long they live. The general opinion of naturalists is that they are likely to live longer in captivity than in the wilds.

Lions in zoos often live from 10 to 15 years. In a few cases the life span has been reported to reach from 20 to 25 years.

Q. Are lion cubs born in captivity?

A. Yes, that often happens. It is common for a litter to consist of four cubs, but sextuplets are born at times.

Q. Can Lions be tamed?

A. Often they have been trained, and rarely they have been tamed. There is a difference: A trained lion may go through its tricks, but there is danger that it will turn on its handler.

Nuclear Tests Refuted in Albert Schweitzer Book

Neenah — Arguments in favor of nuclear tests are summed up by Albert Schweitzer, noted medical missionary and musician regarded as one of the greatest living men today, in his book on "Peace or Atomic War" who then, with devastating logic, shatters those arguments one by one.

The book is among new volumes added to the Neenah Public library shelves recently.

Another new book is Arnold Toynbee's "East to West" in which the famed historian tells of his experiences and people he has met in a 17-month journey around the world.

Ashley Montague's "The Cultured Man" discusses what culture means in America while Paul Roberts tells how to see famous European places in "Cornflakes and Beaujolais."

Other books added are "As Unions Mature" by Richard Lester, "A New England Girlhood" by Nancy Hale, "The Complete Airbrush Book" by S. Ralph Maurell, "The Peter Townsend Story" by Norman Barrymaine, which tells the story of the one-time suit or of Princess Margaret, "How to Dance" by Anita Wright, "Betty Cornell's All About Boys" by Betty Cornell, "Homespun America" by Wallace Brockway, "Salon Interiors" by Samuel Chamberlain and "Mention My Name in Mombasa" by William McGivern.

well in the house was a cat which soon started to mother the cub as well as she could.

I hardly need say that the cub grew larger than the house cat. The two played together a great deal, and the little lion showed fondness for his adopted mother.

When the lion was several months old he was placed on exhibit at a county fair. He refused to eat anything there, Mrs. Susan Bebout was given and Mrs. Bebout was about to take him home when she thought of the cat, and hurried to get it. The young lion was lioness, was needed, and the showman wanted to keep her, but she was bothered by cubs.

Mrs. Bebout fed the cub condensed milk from a baby bottle, and he got along very well.

Safety Stressed by County Game Warden

Rod and Gun Club Announces Dates for Sighting in of Deer Rifles at Froze's Pit

Menasha — Hunting safety was stressed by Al Dunham, county conservation warden, at the monthly meeting of the Twin City Rod and Gun club Tuesday night at Germania hall.

Dunham warned of the danger of carrying a loaded gun in a car even though it is in a case and furthermore, he said, it is against the law. He reported youngsters 12 years of age and over can get hunting licenses, that, they are allowed to carry a gun and get their bag limit but they must be accompanied by their parent, guardian or an adult.

The warden explained that special permits are issued for crippled persons to hunt from cars.

Report Accidents

He urged club members that if they are involved in an accident to report it to the sheriff's office, conservation office or a police department immediately. The warden said mishaps must be reported within 24 hours and added, if the victim is in the hospital, he should have a friend report the accident.

Dunham advised hunters if they are in the field before the pheasant season opening at noon Saturday to keep their guns unloaded. He mentioned a number of birds have been planted in the public hunting grounds in the last week or 10 days.

John Britzke, Rod and Gun club president, announced the dates for hunters to sight in their deer rifles at Louie Froze's pit, on county Trunk S, past the Oak Hill cemetery.

The pit will be open from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays, Nov. 1 and 8, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sundays, Nov. 2

Duren Will Pay His Fine 'With a Smile'

San Antonio, Texas — "I'll pay it with a big smile and just be happy that we won," New York Yankee pitcher Ryne Duren, a native of Cazenovia, Wis., said Tuesday.

The Yankee relief ace referred to a $250 fine assessed him by baseball commissioner Ford Frick for a "choke-up" gesture made at Umpire Charlie Berry during the sixth game of the World Series. The game was played in Milwaukee.

"I honestly don't remember making the gesture, but if I did I was wrong and deserve to be fined," said Duren who won the game that squared the series at three victories each for the Yankees and Milwaukee Braves. The Yankees won the next day and took the world championship.

Duren said he had not made a personal apology to Berry. "I contacted Berry through a friend who works in the commissioner's office and asked that he relay my apology. That was the day of the game," Duren said.

Foreign Policy Stakes Great, Senator Says

Hopes Issue Won't
Develop Into a Political Football

Washington—(AP)—Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) said Tuesday "the stakes are too great and the possibilities too dangerous to permit foreign policy to become a political football."

Mansfield spoke out as Vice President Nixon challenged Democrats to match the Truman administration's handling of international affairs against President Eisenhower's record.

Nixon said in a statement in Chicago the policy carried out by former Secretary of State Dean Acheson "resulted in war and the Eisenhower-Dulles policy resulted in peace." He spoke out in reply to a critical weekend statement from the Democratic advisory council.

Political Issue
Mansfield, the assistant senate Democratic leader, expressed hope that foreign policy "does not become a political issue" but said his party's members have a right to criticize administration actions in the foreign field.

Because Democrats express disagreement with some policies, Mansfield cautioned, "no one should harbor the illusion that Americans are a disunited people."

A similar note was sounded Sunday by Chairman Theodore F. Green (D-RI) of the senate foreign relations committee after a meeting with Secretary of State Dulles. Green had publicly criticized current administration policy.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), like Mansfield a foreign relations committee member, said without elaborating he understood Dulles had sought to limit public discussion of the policies. Morse added in a telegram to Green:

"I Shall Continue" to criticize the Eisenhower - Dulles

Non-Italian Cardinals Face Chance of Never Going Home

Vatican City—(AP)—Each of the non-Italian cardinals coming here for the papal election faces the possibility of never seeing his homeland again. They take that risk in entering the secret conclave which will elect the new pope of the Roman Catholic church.

All cardinals, including the three Americans — Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York, James Francis McIntyre of Los Angeles and Edward Mooney of Detroit—are possible candidates for the high office.

A pontiff could leave the confines of Vatican City. But modern custom in the church has been that the pope does not leave his see as bishop of Rome except to go to the papal summer palace at Castel Gandolfo.

Pope Pius XII visited a Vatican broadcasting station about 20 miles outside Rome. That was the longest trip he made after his election to the papacy in 1939.

This year pressure was exerted by some church circles, especially in France, to have the pope go to Lourdes for the centenary of the shrine there to the Virgin Mary. But the pope sent a delegate.

He contended they endanger both delicate diplomatic negotiations and the security of the free world. Mansfield said he believes the position recently taken by Secretary of State Dulles with regard to possible withdrawal of some Nationalist Chinese troops from Quemoy and Matsu may open the way for successful negotiations toward bringing peace to the area.

Pilot and Two Rescuers Die Over Pacific

'Copter Blows Up
Trying to Reach
Downed Airman

Honolulu — (AP)—Two air force jet fighter planes ran low on fuel over the Pacific yesterday and the pilot of one died when he bailed out of his plane 90 miles northeast of here. Two marine helicopter crewmen were killed when their chopper blew up in the rescue operation.

Six supersonic, sweptwing F101 Voodoos were ferrying to Honolulu from McClellan AFB, Calif., where a spokesman said they had refueled Tuesday morning after a hop from Langley AFB, Va. Shortly after noon, Hawaii time, one of them radioed he was running out of fuel.

Rescue Mission
A quickly organized refueling and rescue mission sent a KC50 tanker and two rescue planes streaking toward him. Due to air turbulence, the air force said, connections could not be made for the aerial refueling and the pilot ejected in what appeared to be a normal bail-out.

But he was found dead, floating in his inflated life jacket, by one of the two helicopters which were on the rescue mission. It deposited his body on the destroyer Forrest Sherman along with the crewman who had been lowered by cable to pick him up.

The helicopter crewman, Sgt. Lawrence Choy, 27, of Honolulu, said, "I couldn't believe it" when told of the explosion.

As the chopper pulled away, it blew up, presumably killing its two remaining crewmen. Search for their bodies was abandoned Tuesday night to resume at dawn. No wreckage was found.

Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next of kind.

Forced to Ditch
The second helicopter was forced to ditch near the destroyer when it ran out of fuel after an unsuccessful attempt to land on the destroyer. Its three crewmen were rescued. None was from Wisconsin.

Ball said the first helicopter had climbed about 500 feet and was about 200 feet from the destroyer when "the next thing I knew I saw pieces flying. It seemed to disintegrate."

Meanwhile a second Voodoo which had reported it was running out of gas was successfully refueled by the tanker and landed safely at Hickam AFB with the other four remaining craft of the flight.

to New York to "demonstrate the unity of the liberal leadership of the Democratic party" in support of Harriman and Hogan.

Stevenson was asked for comment on Harriman's Republican gubernatorial opponent, Nelson A. Rockefeller, philanthropist and former holder of federal posts under both the Democratic and Republican administrations.

Stevenson replied: "I have this includes 'both houses of a high regard for Nelson. He the legislature for the first is a very worthy candidate for time since California became a state."

"The sun has crossed the Rocky mountains," he quipped. Stevenson said he had come and Matsuo.

Adlai Urges Initiative in Foreign Policy

Says New York Vote
Serves as Test of Ike's Philosophy

New York — (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson says "we must make our own foreign policy and not permit it to be made for us."

As he made the statement, he said Americans are united in the belief that U. S. commitments to defend Formosa should be honored.

What differences of views exist, he added, relate to Quemoy and Matsu, which he described as "hardly defensible."

Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn) agreed with Stevenson's appraisal of the American people's attitude at a news conference last night.

Also at the news conference with the 2-time presidential nominee and Humphrey were three other Democrats — Gov. Averell Harriman, running for reelection; Manhattan Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan, candidate for U. S. senator from New York, and former U. S. Sen. Herbert S. Lehman of New York.

Policy Referendum
Stevenson said the New York state election is regarded by the country and the world as a referendum on the foreign policy of the Eisenhower administration.

For this reason, Stevenson said, it is important that New York state have a Democratic victory on Nov. 4 to demonstrate the anxiety which he said the people feel about the conduct of the nation's foreign policy.

The news conference preceded a private Democratic fund-raising dinner. Stevenson predicted that the Democrats will take California in November. He said this includes "both houses of a high regard for Nelson. He the legislature for the first is a very worthy candidate for time since California became a state."

"The sun has crossed the Rocky mountains," he quipped. Stevenson said he had come and Matsuo.

Lasker Award To O'Connor For Polio Work

New York — (AP)—Basil O'Connor was named Tuesday as the first layman to receive one of the nation's foremost medical prizes, the Albert Lasker award. It was for his work in spearheading the drive to conquer infantile paralysis.

O'Connor is president of the National Foundation, formerly the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. He was selected for the Lasker award by a committee of the American Public Health association.

The prizes in the fields of medical research and public health administration are provided by the Albert and Mary Lasker foundation, named for the noted philanthropists.

In honoring O'Connor, the public health foundation said he "probably more than any other layman of modern times has contributed significantly to the substantial conquest throughout the world of a major disease of childhood, paralytic poliomyelitis."

The foundation added: "Since the introduction of the Salk vaccine, the incidence of polio in the United States has declined by 86 per cent, from an annual average of 38,700 cases in the pre-vaccine years 1950-54 to 5,500 in 1957."

Dr. Jonas Salk developed the vaccine under one of the many projects sponsored by the polio foundation headed by O'Connor.

'Wooden Shoe' Name Kept for Town Line Road

Board Decides to Return to Historical Designation

Neenah — Town of Neenah board has voted to change back the name of its town line road with the town of Vinland and Clayton to Wooden Shoe road.

The name had been changed earlier to Green Valley road by the Neenah town board which had received petitions for the change. For many years the road was known as Wooden Shoe alley.

Other residents wanted to keep the original name of the road which runs from Highway 114 south to County Trunk GG. After consultation with the two other town boards, it was agreed to change back to the original name, but to make it "road" instead of "alley."

Signs have been ordered by the Neenah town board for its part of the road and will be installed soon.

Thinks New Sputnik Now Sending Signals

Kansas City — (AP)—Is there a new electronic voice in the sky? Sputnik No. 4?

"It's a new satellite," says amateur radio operator Elmo Melton, "or else some mighty weird things are happening."

The 59-year-old Melton said he heard a new signal last night at intervals of 100, 103 and 117 minutes. Melton, who listens almost nightly for Sputnik No. 3, insists it is a new signal. "Sputnik 3 sounds like a slow letter A," he said, "this one resembles a fast T, Tuesday morning. Neither about four dashes a second."

Canned Salmon Good Choice For Company Salad Platter

BY EDITH M. BARBER

Some years ago, when I visited the state of Washington at this season, the salmon were running and the canning plants were in full operation. I learned some interesting facts. One was the concern over the catch one year when, for some unknown reason, the flesh of the fish was almost white instead of the delicate pink we associate with salmon.

mon. We expect our salmon to be of this shade, although we like our tuna white.

The solid-packed salmon is appropriate for serving in large pieces masked with mayonnaise and surrounded by salad greens. We like the smaller pieces diced and combined with an almost equal amount of diced celery. Sprinkling with lemon juice before adding the mayonnaise gives this type of salad a piquant flavor. Or you may like to serve wedges of lemon on the side.

Stream and Spray Salad
2 cans salmon (4-pound each), drained
1 recipe potato salad (for 4)
Salad greens
1 can (1 lb.) asparagus tips
1/2 lemon, cut in wedges
Pimiento strips
Tomato wedges
Place drained salmon on large salad platter. Put potato salad in salad greens and surround salmon with four bundles of asparagus. Tuck wedge of lemon in center of each asparagus bundle and garnish with strip of pimiento. Garnish with tomato wedges. Yield: four servings.
Creamed Salmon
Drain can of salmon and reserve liquid. Flake meat. Prepare 1 1/2 cups cream sauce, using the liquid to replace part of the milk. Combine fish and sauce. Heat thoroughly and serve hot over toast or over toasted split English muffins. Grated cheese or thinly sliced olives may be added before reheating, if desired.

Lawrence Says:
GOP Voters
May Beat Own
Party in '58
Looks as Though
Many Republicans
Will Stay Home

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington — It may sound paradoxical but it looks now as if Republicans will defeat Republicans in the 1958 congressional elections and Democrats may defeat Democrats in the 1960 presidential elections.

There are sufficient Republican votes in the country to elect a majority of the members of both the Senate and House this year, but at present it seems probable that a lower percentage than usual will go to the polls this November.

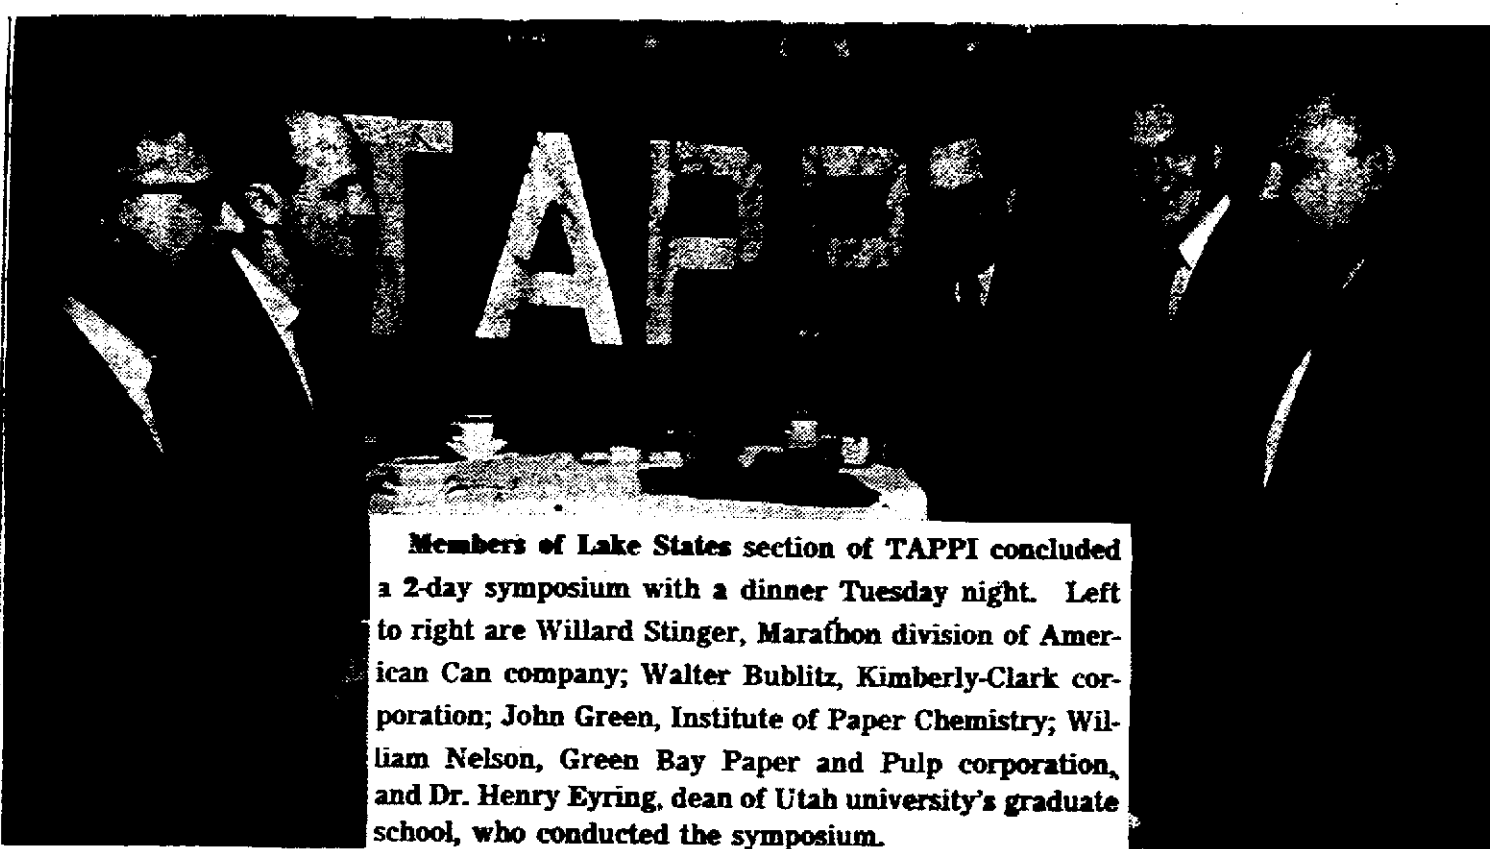

As for 1960, there would appear to be enough electoral votes in sight already in the north-based on current trends—to give the Democrats a victory in the presidential race, but this assumes the south will cast its electoral vote for the Democrats instead of for a third party. The present outlook, however, is for a third party to emerge by 1960 in the south because of cleavages on the "civil rights" issue. This could mean defeat in the electoral college for the regular Democratic party nominees for president and vice president.

GOP Problem
The problem for the Republicans in the 1958 congressional elections has meanwhile been complicated by the split inside the party on the subject of "modernism" and "conservatism." The so-called "modernists" have done much to alienate conservatives and now, when the call is for harmony and efforts are being made to persuade conservative Republicans to let bygones be bygones, it is being discovered that it takes a lot more than a few weeks' exhortation just before an election to overcome the mistakes of the past.

Too much of the Republican strategy heretofore seems to have been influenced by the mistaken belief that the "independent" vote is always anti-Republican and that concessions must be made to the "left wing" side of the economic argument of the day in order to win the support of "independents." The Democrats have cleverly cultivated that point of view to such an extent that many Republicans in the administration have hesitated until recently to use the word "conservative" in reference to the economic battle, though they have at last—and with good reason—begun to point to the "socialistic" trends among the northern and western Democrats.

It is true the southern Democrats who are conservative have saved the day many a time for the Republican administration's legislative program in congress, but it is also true that these southern Democrats will be very much in the minority and will have less and less influence in congress if the northern and western socialists and radicals get the upper hand in the councils of the Democratic party in November. This could be the result if the Democrats win a landslide victory in the congressional elections because of the apathy of conservative Republican voters.

Business Attitude
Some businessmen have been saying to themselves that a congress controlled by the Democratic party isn't so bad after all, since the last

Dean Henry Eyring, of Utah university's graduate school, conducted discussions and was speaker at a dinner Tuesday night concluding the sessions. Eyring holds his doctorate from the University of California and has numerous honorary degrees. He specializes in radioactivity, application of quantum mechanics to chemistry, theory of reaction rates, theory of liquids, rheology, molecular biology and the theory of flames.

The 2-day discussions took about 30 TAAPI members and personnel from the institute into chemical processes at the fundamental level of describing what happens to molecules during processes, especially in the liquid state.

Flexibility Function
Eyring described flexibility in fibers, for example, as a function of holes — at the molecular level. Wood fiber, for instance, is composed of long molecules. If the molecules lie close together with few holes, the fiber is stiff; if the molecules are not close together, the fiber is flexible. The difference between a solid and a liquid actually is simply that more holes are in a liquid — it is more flexible. This type of description, using the tool of mathematics, leads to the ability to predict the behavior of materials in different processes. It indicates what physical experiments would be valuable to perform, Eyring said.

In the manufacture of rayon, Eyring pointed out, if the holes are taken out of the material, the rayon thread becomes extremely strong. It is brittle and will break under shock, but is strong on a pulling basis. Add a few holes, and the fiber becomes more flexible, but loses some of its strength.

Use of Theory
"The use of theory, such as we have done during this symposium, probably helps us to consolidate our gains, give us a picture of desirable gains and gives us a direction for future experimentation," Eyring said. The men attending a session such as this one may find where to look for answers to their problems. We don't solve any problems here, we are trying to explain material behavior on the level

No Action on Funds for Guidance Unit

Backers Told to Appear at Budget Talks in November

The county board will hear appeals for funds for a child guidance center during public hearings on the county budget which open Nov. 3. The board's executive committee has not placed any of 'why and how does this or that happen,' Eyring said. To explain holes in fibers, Eyring pointed out that when a housewife irons, she utilizes this nature of matter. To make the fibers flexible and to arrange them, water is put on the fabric. Water swells the material slightly, opening up more holes on the molecular level. When heat and pressure are put on the material, the holes are reduced and the material is fixed in position.

An analogous condition in the paper industry is steam-ironing of paper, supercalendering or embossing, it was said. The 2-day symposium is the third held by a TAPPI group, two others were conducted by Dr. Eyring on the Pacific coast.

Pays Fine for Not Reporting Accident

Loren F. Griswold, 25, route 1, Fremont, was fined $50 Tuesday in municipal court after he admitted failing to report an accident Oct. 5 at Highways 10 and 41.

Griswold's car went off the road and struck a snow fence and flares around the highway construction project, county police said. He will receive two points against his driving record.

Donald M. Verboven, 21, route 2, West De Pere, was fined $35 for illegal passing. His driver's license was revoked for six months, but revocation was stayed on condition he is not arrested for a moving traffic violation in the next year.

Charged with speeding were Russell A. Parker, 1321 George street, fined $25, three points; Jack E. Best, 526 E. Fairview street, fined $10, three points; and Marvin E. Baker, 41, 205 Klein street, Kaukauna, fined $35 and paid costs of $18.95, six points. Other cases were Martha L. Loss, 61, 318 E. Spring street, New London, illegal passing, $15, four points; and James E. Walters, 28, route 2, Menasha, speeding near Badger school, $25, six points.

Here are Results! C. A. Weisser, route 1, Red Granite, sows a part of the 11 sows he is breeding at his pig farm. This fall he harvested 85 piglets, an average of 7.7 pigs per litter. He will sell the pigs as feeders. His spring farrowing averaged 7.5 per sow.

Bull Raiser Turns To Pigs in Big Way

Progress Ended One Business but Pacemaker Idea Starts New One

Progress put C. A. Weisser, route 1, Red Granite, out of one business, but when he took stock of the resources about him, he moved right into an even more profitable venture. He's raising feeder pigs.

The Wisconsin Feeder Pig Marketing co-op is attempting to set up a Pacemaker program for feeder pig raisers. The Outagamie County Pacemaker Pork Production committee met today to spell out the necessary steps to get the program started here.

But if example is any kind of teacher—and some believe it is the first kind—the co-op has a real persuader in Weisser.

Handles 11 Sows
He now has 11 sows farrowing twice a year. This spring the sows averaged 7.5 pigs a litter and the fall farrowing developed a 7.7 pigs a litter average.

The Pacemaker program described by the co-op to the Wisconsin Agriculture Writers association sets a standard of 15 sows per farm.

With proper breeding and management practices, the co-op believes feeder pig raising can become a year around

County Fairs Asking for Tax Support

Bill Will Seek Right to Levy
On Property

Fast-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Should county fair associations have the right to make plans for land acquisition and building improvements on a long range basis?

The legislature will be asked to decide next winter. The Dane county board has asked the legislative council to sponsor legislation that would permit counties to levy special property taxes for the financing of the county fairs and for meeting their capital requirements.

The Dane county board suggested that the two tenths of a mill property tax which counties are now permitted to levy for the acquisition, maintenance and operation of county parks would be a suitable means for the support of the county agricultural expositions.

Council members referred the proposal to a committee for study in preparation for the convening of the legislature without comment on its merits, although there was one skeptical observation.

"The idea of a special county fair tax levy is useless," said Assemblyman Frank N. Graess, veteran representative of Door and Kewaunee counties.

"It will never get the support of the legislature," he volunteered.

A council committee is now studying the issue of park financing, including a liberalization of the county park levy and the possibility of installing a special state property levy for the support of a larger state park system.

Non-Compliance Corn May Get Price Support This Year

Washington — The agriculture department is believed ready to support prices of 1958-crop corn grown out of compliance with a production control program.

An announcement to this effect is expected. The support rate may be around $1.10 a bushel compared with $1.36 for that part of the crop grown on farms that planted within acreage allotments designed to prevent overproduction.

Normally, price supports are denied crops produced by farms exceeding acreage allotments.

But in 1956, Secretary Benson set up supports for the non-compliance corn. He said this was necessary to prevent a sharp drop in prices. The rate that year was $1.25 a bushel compared with $1.50 for compliance grain.

Last year he did the same thing, but reduced the rate to $1.10 for corn grown on farms exceeding allotments. The rate for cooperating farms was $1.40 a bushel.

Encroaching City Causes Dissolving Of Huge Dairy Farm

Genesee Depot — Cows can't stand in the way of city folks, even in a dairy state like Wisconsin.

The Brook Hill farm, in a 2-day auction, sold its herd of 436 Holsteins.

The 1,200-acre farm, about 20 miles west of Milwaukee, is being subdivided, and its excess machinery and equipment will be sold.

Howard T. Greene, head of Brook Hill farms, explained that one reason the herd is being sold is because of "increasing encroachment of the Milwaukee - Waukesha metropolitan area."

Ray Manderscheid, Jr., To Get Farmer Award

Third Chilton High Graduate in as Many Years Honored by National FFA Convention

Chilton — Raymond Manderscheid, Jr., route 1, Ma-lone, has been awarded the coveted American Farmer award at the national Future Farmers of America convention now in progress in Kansas City, Mo.

Manderscheid is the third member of the Chilton high school Future Farmers chapter to receive the organization's highest degree since 1956.

The reception of the honor award by a graduate for three successive years, now places Chilton chapter of the FFA on the distinguished list held by the national organization. A total of six young men have gained the degree since the Future Farmers group was inaugurated here several years ago.

Manderscheid received both the Wisconsin Farmer degree and the "Wisconsin Star Farmer" award in 1955. At the same time, he ranked third in his high school class while helping his father operate a 200-acre farm.

Outstanding Work

His farm program work was considered outstanding since his projects included: purebred Herefords, Duroc hogs, Guernsey cattle, and Shropshire sheep. He also carried the raising of several crops in his farming plan.

Now married, Manderscheid is operating the 200-acre farm on shares with his father. In this manner he intends working into full farm ownership in accordance with the American Farmer plan. He has also accumulated a good inventory of personal property.

Qualifications for the American Farmer degree are high. It is seldom that a candidate can qualify for the award until he has been out of high school two or three years. Maximum age limitation is 21.

The candidate must previously have attained the FFA's three other degrees, be outstanding in leadership, scholastic ability, cooperative efforts, and farming program

Little Hoeing Needed In Growing Tomato In Concrete Sidewalk

Mount Vernon, Ill. —(U)—Oscar Harper had a successful tomato crop this year from a plant that grew out of a sidewalk in front of his store.

The plant came up through a crack in the concrete. Harper watered it and the plant grew.

As it gained stature he enclosed it in a packing case to protect it from pedestrians.

Today he made a crop report. During the growing season he enjoyed 30 ripe tomatoes. Twenty green tomatoes were left on the plant when a killing frost hit during the weekend.

Gardening through concrete has one definite advantage, Harper said.

"It saves hoeing."

Reluctant Calf Born After 370 Days Instead of 283

Kaukauna — It should take 283 days for a cow to drop her calf and Joe Killian's 7-year-old Holstein has usually gone along with her sisters in using that schedule.

But she was different for her last calf!

She was artificially bred on Sept. 30, 1957, which should have made July 9 the calf's birthday. The little lady failed to appear until Oct. 5. That's 370 days.

Sack of Bones

Killian says the calf weighed 141 pounds but was "just a sack of bones and a little stupid and weak." It took her five days to get enough strength to stand up.

When Joe tells his neighbors about the reluctant calf, they don't believe him until they see that she looks like a 3 - month - old youngster.

He directs any doubters to his route 3, Kaukauna, farm just outside the city on the Hollandtown road.

Despite the conversation possibilities in the 370-day gestation, Killian hopes it doesn't happen again.

"I've lost three months of milk," he explains, "and just what is this 3-month-old critter? Can you call her veal?"

What is the most profitable weight at which hogs should be marketed?

Feeding hogs to heavy weights is an expensive practice. Heavy hogs eat more feed per pound of gain. The market does not want heavy hogs. The best weight is around 200 pounds.

War in Europe Could Have Ended in 1944, Monty Says

New York—Field Marshal Montgomery says the western allies could have ended World War II in 1944 in Europe instead of in May, 1945.

A top German general agrees with him. The view that Germany could have been defeated a few months after the breakout in northern France is set forth in the second installment of the memoirs of Field Marshal Montgomery published by Life magazine.

Montgomery says he pre-

Germany, to comment on the taken is, of course, open to argument. But what cannot be disputed is that when a certain strategy, right or wrong, was decided upon, it wasn't directed. We did not advance to the Rhine on a broad front; we advanced to the Rhine on several fronts, which were uncoordinated. And what was the German answer? A single and concentrated punch in the Ardennes (battle of the Bulge) when we were unbalanced and unduly extended. We were caught on the hop."

Blumentritt says the Germans were surprised when the allies stopped advancing, not knowing available supplies were not enough to support the "broad front" advance. The German general says this pause gave the Germans time to regroup and launch the Ardennes offensive.

Eisenhower Silent James C. Hagerly, White House press secretary, said President Eisenhower will have no comment on Montgomery's views.

Gen. Bradley was contacted this week by the Associated Press in Frankfurt, Germany, where he was on a business trip but declined to comment on Montgomery's or Blumentritt's views.

Montgomery, in this week's installment, tells of the battle in Normandy, the breakout and the heated disagreement among the allied generals over strategy. There was a further vigorous dispute over Montgomery's proposal to Eisenhower that he be put in command of all ground forces for the dash into north Germany and Berlin.

The single thrust strategy meant that while some British and American armies advanced others would have to assume defensive positions and give their supplies to the advancing forces. This did not sit well with the commanders who would be called upon to stay put.

Montgomery also says Eisenhower told him public opinion would not support putting an American army under Montgomery's command and leaving the American army group with only one army.

"I asked him why public opinion would make us take military decisions which were definitely unsound," Montgomery said. "Possibly I did not give sufficient weight to the heavy political burden he bore. Looking back, I often wonder if I paid sufficient heed to Eisenhower's notions before refuting them. I think I did."

Need 'Know-How' to Buy New Bedding Equipment Economically With Care

No matter how limited your budget or your space, everyone needs something to sleep on.

And yet so many people really don't know what questions to ask when buying bedding. They prod the end of the mattress with their hands, sit gingerly on the edge and bounce a couple of times, but are too timid to informally ask questions about its construction and to actually lie down and try it out, which is the only valid test.

As most mattresses look pretty much alike from the outside, here are some suggested points to use as a shopping guide.

First of all, go to a reliable store and buy a reliable brand which is the best you can afford. And here a word of advice. Remember that good foundations are necessary both for your own comfort and the long life of the mattress. It is a poor economy to buy a top-quality mattress and then try to make do with an old-worn-out spring.

Easy to Clean

Covered boxsprings with a platform top provide a firm, sagproof foundation and are easy to keep clean. They are covered in matching mattress ticking, making a neater, dustproof unit. However, good open metal coils with flat metal bands can also be used and are less expensive.

Now for the mattress. Consider first of all, comfort. Some people like a hard surface, some soft. There is no right or wrong about this as long as the surface is level and firm enough to support your back. Don't be shy. Lie down on it, turn over, try it. If it sags like a hammock, then the mattress is not for you.

Nine out of ten mattresses have one of two types of inner-springs. A small percentage are also made of solid upholstered foam rubber, cotton or hair with no inner-springs. They derive their comfort from the natural resiliency of the filling materials.

Wire-Tied Coils

One type of inner-spring has wire-tied coils that are fastened to each other by small spiral springs or wire ties or both. The number of coils in these mattresses runs from 180 to 400 depending upon the size of the spring. High coil count alone is not indicative of a good mattress. In general, 220 to 310 "open" coils are recommended as a good basic unit.

The other type of inner-spring mattress has separate, independent coils with each coil reacting only to the weight above it, giving body-fitting support from head to toe. The number of coils in this mattress is over 800, and each one is individually encased in a cloth pocket and compressed for desirable support.

Construction and quality are what count, so ask your salesman about the inner workings as well as those you can see.

Check the cover or ticking. It should be close-woven and firm, weighing at least six but preferable eight ounces.

Tufts Important

Look at the tufts which anchor the upholstery and prevent shifting. These tufts are either buttons or tapes. Some mattresses are tuftless, which means that the upholstery is stitched on the inside. In buying a tuftless mattress, it is wise to buy the best to ensure proper inner stitching to prevent separation of upholstery and eventual coil "feel."

Test the borders by pressing down with your hands to compare for strength. Borders should be lined with cotton felt and a backing material, then single or double stitched. These are referred to as reinforced or "pre-built" borders and are indicative of better quality. For better support and durability, borders should also have an inner roll edge.

Examine the border panels to make sure each has at least four air ventilators that work. Also look at the handles to see that they are firmly secured. In better mattresses, they are generally made of cord, nylon or steel.

And finally, remember that good bedding is the single most important inducement to a good night's sleep.

Actives of Pi Beta Phi sorority at Lawrence college entertained "visiting royalty" Monday afternoon when they honored Mrs. Stanley E. Kyle, Pasadena, Calif., national program director, at a tea in the sorority room at Coleman hall. Working Women Women in Work Force Create Problems in the U.S. Economy

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Women in the work force have been causing talk ever since the first one announced she had time to leave the cave and do a little dinosaur hunting herself.

Now the working woman is more of a problem than ever. Today she holds the balance of power in our nation's economic structure; tomorrow she will be the one major manpower pool to be tapped in a probable period of shortage.

Despite these hard facts, the modern woman's place outside the home is marked by paradox and marred by inefficiency in the use of her adult on the question of work-skills. The situation is pointed out dramatically in the newly published "Work in the Lives of Married Women," a report of the National Manpower council, "Work in the Lives of Married Women." Tranquilizers Mean People Too Relaxed to Fall in Love

BY DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

If the happy pill boom keeps on at its present rate, women will be too relaxed to fall in love and men will be too tranquil to care.

This is the horrifying prediction of two bright young men who have declared war on the modern philosophy that there's a pill for everything.

They are Harry Middleton and Warren Kiefer, authors of the just-published novel, "Pax," a highly entertaining slap at the mushrooming drug business in America. They write under the byline "Middleton Kiefer."

"Middleton and Kiefer were employees in the public relations department of one of the country's largest wholesale drug companies when they decided to quit and write a book about Americans swallowing tranquilizer pills at the rate of a billion and a quarter a year.

Anger Important

"I just don't think everybody should get that relaxed," says Middleton. "You need to get mad or worried or tense once in a while, or you'll never do anything. Most of the great things accomplished in the world have been done by people who were blazing mad about something."

"This thing is really getting out of bounds," says Kiefer. "People take tranquilizer pills to keep them calm during the day, sleeping pills to put them to sleep at night and pep pills to wake them up in the morning."

"Now I hear they have an all-purpose capsule which releases various pills on schedule, over a 24-hour period. There are tranquilizers for part of the day, pep pills for other periods, sleeping pills and built-in alarms—Pills to wake you up. This, I feel, is going too far. A man shouldn't surrender every reaction of life to a pill."

Miss Joan Abel
Seymour Girl,
Black Creek
Man Engaged

The engagement of Miss Joan Abel to Roy Porter has been announced by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Vernice Abel, 433 Robbins street, Seymour. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lela Porter, Black Creek.

Both Miss Abel and her fiancé are Seymour High school graduates. She was graduated from the Accredited School of Beauty Culture, Green Bay, and is employed at the Curly Top Beauty salon, Seymour. Mr. Porter attends the University of Wisconsin extension center in Green Bay.

A wedding date has not been selected.

Pills Not Popcorn

The authors are quick to concede that tranquilizer pills are important and effective in the treatment of many ills, when taken under careful medical supervision.

But they feel these drugs shouldn't be eaten like popcorn.

"Although some of these drugs are 4,000 years old, they didn't hit the American market with the full blast of modern advertising and promotion methods until about five years ago," says Middleton. "Drug companies hit on them at an ideal time, saleswise."

"The whole country was in a state of national jitters, and hypochondria was the national malady. That's one of the main reasons why drug companies have been cleaning up vast fortunes in the last decade, why drug stocks have skyrocketed, and why the country is being sold on the idea that there's no tragedy a pill can't cure."

Bride-to-be Is Honored

Miss Muriel Vanderheiden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vanderheiden, Lena, has been the guest of honor at several pre-nuptial parties before her marriage on Saturday to Richard Ebenhoe, son of Wenzel Ebenhoe, Brillion.

On Sept. 27 the bride-elect was feted at a dinner party at the Elmer Martin residence in Green Bay. Mrs. Elmer Martin and Mrs. Kenneth Martin were hostesses.

Miss Mary Grall and Mrs. Edward Rammer, both of Appleton, were hostesses at a recent party for Miss Vanderheiden. On Oct. 4 Misses Eileen Schiebel, Nancy Silverwood and Irene Summers, all of Green Bay, gave a dinner party for the bride-to-be.

Both the bride-elect and her

Guy Who Wore Glasses Spoiled Chances for Romance, Marriage

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I enjoyed the letter asking who should remove glasses when kissing the boy or the girl. It brought back such fond memories that I simply had to sit down and write my first letter to an advice column.

You said glasses did not Ann Landers hinder romance. Well, they killed it deadlier than a dodo for me.

I was very much enamored of a fellow who was tall, handsome, intelligent, and mature. I might have married him if it hadn't been for his glasses.

Whenever we went out the end of the evening was always the same. We'd park in front of my house, he'd remove his glasses with great care, and place them in his glass case. With a little flourish he'd put the case in his inside pocket. I knew enough to sit quietly, hands folded in my lap, until he leaned over and kissed me.

After the kiss he'd take the case from his pocket, methodically remove the glasses, wipe them with his handkerchief, and put on his glasses again. I don't know what would have happened if I'd wanted a second kiss. I'd probably have been out of luck, as it was too much trouble.

The ritual got to be so amusing that I had difficulty controlling my laughter. Of course, romance went out the window. How could I thrill to a kiss when inside I was laughing myself silly? I thought you might like to know the part glasses played in one girl's life.—E.K.T.

DEAR ANN: We are three girls who work in an office. We are all crazy about our wonderful boss. Don't jump to any hasty conclusions. Two of us are happily married, and the other is engaged. The boss is a widower in his early 60's and the sweetest, most fatherly man in all the world.

The problem is, he needs new clothes badly. He looks downright seedy. His wife died four years ago and we know he hasn't bought a stitch since. (She probably shopped for him, poor dear.) His shirts are frayed and his suits are shiny. He needs new shoes and socks and everything imaginable. Money is no problem. He's loaded. Dare we say anything?

We hate to see him looking so shabby, but we don't want to offend him either. What to do?—THE TRIO

Tell him—just as you told me. He'll probably be flattered to pieces that you girls care about his appearance. Offer to go shopping with him. He'll love it—I think.

DEAR ANN: I married a girl from England while serving overseas six years ago. We have two children and get along well. I thought I knew all about her but I was mistaken.

Two weeks ago I received a letter from her mother saying it was time I sent for my wife's son and supported him. I was shocked and hurt. She never once mentioned the boy. When I asked about it she said she was ashamed to say anything because the father their feet on the ground figuratively and physically. An angry little one will kick out them in the years to come and at the kitten or the dog at his feet. This is the time to what happens to them. A kick-scoot, loudly, and at length, or at 4 or 5, undisciplined, is so as to impress him with the idea that he must never, never into adolescence when it will er, lift his foot at anybody or not do him too much good or anything that is alive. He those he kicks either.

My wife cries constantly and is begging me to send for her son. Do you think this is fair? I'm a junior executive and I can't afford to do this. I could I explain this child to family, friends and the men I work with? They are conservative people and would not take such a thing lightly. What shall I do?—O.F.D.

You have every reason to be deeply disappointed and shaken. Your wife acted in an unconscionable manner. But what will name-calling, breast-beating and hair-pulling get you?

Since you seem to have a good marriage and two children, the sensible thing to do is pull yourself together and send for the boy. It will be assumed the child is from a former marriage. It's nobody's business that he was born out of wedlock. You owe no explanations.

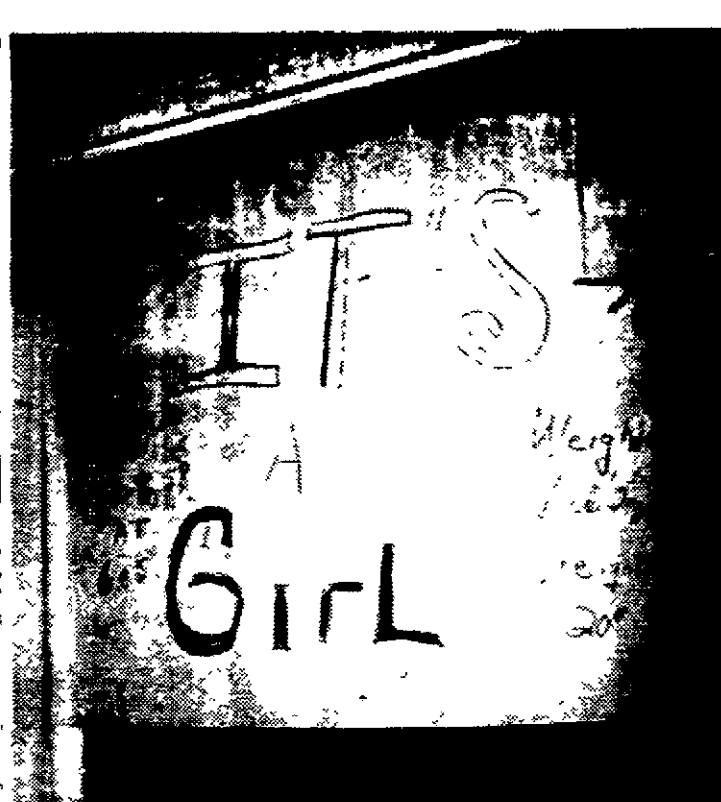

This unfortunate boy could be a great joy to you, which would be a fitting reward for your kind heart and forgiving spirit. Good luck.

Our Children

Kicking Best Left For Football Games

BY ANGELO PATRI

To kick is instinctive in little children. They will kick at anything and anybody annoying them and of course that will not do.

They have to learn to keep their feet on the ground figuratively and physically. An early age is likely to stay with them in the years to come and at the kitten or the dog at his feet. This is the time to what happens to them. A kick-scoot, loudly, and at length, or at 4 or 5, undisciplined, is so as to impress him with the idea that he must never, never into adolescence when it will er, lift his foot at anybody or not do him too much good or anything that is alive. He those he kicks either.

The babies in their cribs kick, instinctively, to develop the use of their legs and we struggling with her small boy fasten an inflated basket or of 5 to get him to enter the football to the foot of their kindergarten room where he cribs so that their kicks meet belonged. He was kicking her with the resistance they need er, and rightly. It is bad as hard as he could manage to be forceful. That necessity enough to battle with fists, and when a teacher came to is past once they get on their but not feet. Feet are not to her rescue and shouted at the feet. They develop the muscles of their legs by use after time. They are ruled out.

Culbertson on Bridge

The declarer was within one short step of victory in the following deal, but he didn't know it, and so a vulnerable grand slam went down the drain.

North opened the auction with one spade, and after South had recovered from the joyous shock of hearing a bid opposite his powerhouse, he bid clubs and then hearts, and finally arrived at a grand slam in the minor suit—for which he could scarcely be chided!

West decided to open his fourth-highest diamond, and since there was no hurry about discarding, declarer ducked in dummy and ruffed East's diamond queen. (As it happened, it would not have served East's cause to put in the eight, since he had only three cards in the suit.) South then drew four rounds of trumps. West discarded two diamonds and a heart; and dummy discarded a heart and a spade. The position was now as follows:

With only one way of getting to dummy—via South's low spade to the king or queen—there was no reason for declarer to hold on to his last trump, but perhaps it gave him a sense of security to do so. In any case, he now led ace and low spade, hoping for two heart discards on the spade suit as well as two on the high diamonds. But this was not to be and down South went.

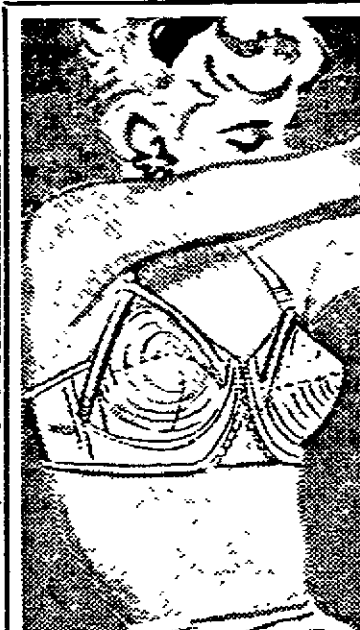

If declarer had properly cashed his last trump, West would have had to throw off his remaining heart, thereby indicating clearly enough that he was keeping spades and diamonds. On that reading, South should pitch the heart from dummy and then lay down the ace of hearts. That would be the final curtain for West! Dummy would simply keep the suit that West discarded.

Wine Sauce Tops Baked Fish Dish

Whether you're an old hand at wine cookery or just beginning to use it in a few favorite ways, this recipe is for you! It's an easy, made-ahead casserole, and all of the ingredients are inexpensive. Most famous restaurants have a specialty like this of wine and one of the white fish varieties such as haddock, sole or perch. Here, the wine sauce is dotted with green pepper and celery and is a gorgeous tomato-paste pink!

Fish Casserole
1 cup uncooked white rice
2½ teaspoons salt
1½ cups water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 to 1½ lbs. fish fillets (sole, haddock, halibut, whiting, etc.) thawed
6 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup all-purpose flour
2½ cups rich milk
2/3 cup sherry wine
2/3 cup tomato paste

Put the rice, one teaspoon of the salt and water in a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat down low. Cover with a lid. Simmer over this low heat 14 minutes. Remove the saucepan from the heat but leave the lid on 10 minutes.

While the rice cooks, cut the fish into serving-sized pieces. Pour the lemon juice over the fish.

Melt butter in a saucepan. Add the celery, onion and green pepper. Saute until soft. Blend in the flour and one and one-half teaspoons of the salt. Slowly stir in the milk. Simmer, stirring, about five minutes or until the mixture is smooth and has thickened. Stir in the wine and tomato paste.

Arrange in Casserole
Spread the cooked rice over a well-greased, 2-quart shallow baking dish or casserole. Arrange the fish over the rice. Pour on the sauce.

Bake in a pre-heated 375 degree oven about 20 to 25 minutes or until hot through and fish flakes easily. Recipe makes six servings.

For a bridge luncheon, bake individual servings in pyrex or oven-proof casseroles. Garnish the tops with green pepper rings or celery leaves.

Follow These 5 Rules for Making Perfect Popcorn

The Popcorn institute recommends these five simple steps in popping perfect popcorn:

1. Warm the popper, heavy pan or heavy skillet.
2. Put in one-fourth cup of your favorite cooking oil.
3. Let the oil get hot—about three minutes. Drop in three or four kernels. When they begin to spin in the hot oil, it's time to start popping.
4. Pour enough kernels to cover the bottom of popper or skillet.
5. Cover and shake gently. When you hear the last few pops, remove pan from heat and empty contents into a large bowl. Pour in melted butter and salt to taste. Serve immediately.

Dismiss Charge Of Auto Theft

A charge of auto theft against Jose A. Medina, 22, an itinerant farm worker from Guadalupe, Mexico, has been dismissed for lack of evidence. Medina and a companion were slightly injured when a car in which they were riding crashed into a house in Shiocton Sept. 18. The car belonged to Ivan Johnson, route 1, Shiocton.

Medina was unable to speak English and testified through an interpreter when arraigned Sept. 24. He denied stealing the car and said he and his companion were given a ride in the car by another man.

Promotion Manager to Speak at Convention

David Lindsey, Post-Crescent promotion manager, will discuss the newspaper's circulation promotion program in an address to the National Newspaper Promotion association, central region, convention in Detroit Oct. 28.

The association is made up of promotion managers of daily newspapers throughout the United States. The Post-Crescent has won four first place awards from the organization during the past three years for top promotions.

Shrimp, Lobster Newburg Named For New Yorker

Newburg—the name given to lobster, shrimp or crab in a wine sauce—has an interesting history.

It seems that in the early years of this century, Delmonico's restaurant had an appreciative patron so persistent in his praises of a certain lobster-in-wine dish, that the chef named the delicacy after him. Soon all fashionable restaurants were making newburgs with all kinds of shellfish.

A simplified version for Shrimp Newburg comes to us from the Shrimp Association of the Americas.

Shrimp Newburg
1 pound raw shrimp, shelled and deveined
4 tablespoons butter
1 cup heavy cream
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 tablespoons sherry
If shrimp are large, cut them in two or three pieces. Sauté shrimp in butter for five minutes.
Mix egg yolks and cream together and heat in the upper part of a double boiler, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Add shrimp and heat through, being careful not to let the mixture boil.
Add seasonings and sherry. Serve on toast points or in patty shells.

Bake Instead Of Fry Riced Ham Cutlets

These crusty ham cutlets make the last of the ham first choice with your family. They are like a croquette but are made pork chop-shaped. Instead of frying them in fat, bake them in the oven to save time and calories!

During the day, you can make the ham cutlets to store in the refrigerator. Twenty minutes baking gives the rice cereal crust a tempting, crisp golden brown. This recipe shows you how well inexpensive, bland rice can stretch the ham, mustard and ½ cup and enhance flavor—in this of the celery soup. Mix well. Cool. Cover and chill in the refrigerator.

When cold, divide into six equal portions of about ½ cup each. Melt the butter in a shallow pan large enough to hold six cutlets.
Crush the rice cereal into crumbs. Place in a shallow bowl. Shape the rice-ham mixture into flat pork chop-shaped cutlets. With a spatula, dip both sides into the melted butter. Cover well with the cereal crumbs. Place cutlets back in the pan of melted butter. Cover and store in the lid. Simmer over this low heat refrigerator until meal time. Place the cutlets in a pre-saucepan from the heat but heated 425 oven 20 to 25 minutes or until crisp and golden. After the rice cooks, stir in brown. Serve immediately.

Personal Values, Habits, Customs Five Safety Color World's View of Americans Areas Formed

BY SAUL PETT
AP News-Editorial Writer

In Uganda, East Africa, a store clerk has seen American skyscrapers and Cadillacs and swimming pools in the movies and is not impressed. He himself lives in a mud-walled shack with no plumbing. He is happy there with his two concubines and five children of doubtful parentage. The women seem happy, too.

"I would like Americans better if they thought more of each other and less of their possessions," says the clerk. "All white men are unhappy. Why don't they learn to run

Bitter communist propaganda colors the image of America for millions of persons behind the Iron and Bamboo curtains. For many others, personal experiences with touring Americans also blemish the picture. But these are only two of the many mirrors reflecting the picture of the United States. The exalted position of American women also confounds and amuses Ram Dulari and Mohammed el Fassy.

William Scribner, Bear Creek, for the towns of Maine, Bovina, Deer Creek, Maple Creek, Center, Ellington and the villages of Bear Creek and Shiocton.

The group voted to hold a county-wide safety conference and dinner Nov. 10 at a place and with a speaker still to be determined.

Mohammed el Fassy is the garage mechanic in Rabat, Morocco, who respects Gary Cooper and other western stars he has seen in the movies but finds other aspects of American life just a trifle ridiculous. He has observed American servicemen at a nearby base. Last spring he accompanied one GI family on a picnic.

Husband Works "They had three children and the husband carried the baby all the time." Mohammed recalls disdainfully. "He even did the cooking on an oil stove and he washed the baby in the lake!"

In Mohammed's vocabulary, all that is bizarre, is "kif-kif amerrikia," which means, "like an American." Thus a man who shaves every day or wears a straw hat or carries a camera or a baby or anyone who runs in the street is "kif-kif amerrikia."

There are no customers quite like Americans, Mohammed finds. They come to him in his small garage for repairs on their vehicles.

"They know so much about motors. I just wait for them to tell me what's wrong, then I start to fix it. But often they take the tools out of my hands and fix it themselves. Still, they pay all the same. Amazing!"

And in Madrid, Spain, a bus conductor named Martin Garcia Tirado, dismisses the United States of America with one broad sweep.

"I don't read English but judging by what people say of their literature, the Americans must be fairly immoral. Judging by their movies, I would call them ingenuous and even childish. Judging by their policy in the world, I would say the world cannot hope to get its salvation from them."

Former State Man Reports Oil Discovery

James W. Menhall Says Find Biggest In Persian Gulf

Damascus, Syria — A — James W. Menhall, 71-year-old former Wisconsin businessman, has discovered oil in Syria where other prospectors said none existed. But he has not yet been able to convince President Nasser of the United Arab Republic government that he should be given permission to exploit it.

Menhall, a one-time resident of Beloit and Edgerton, Wis., heads and owns stock in the parent financing firm, the Syrian Arabian Oil company. He also owns a half interest in the Menhall Prospecting and Exploitation company, a drilling firm, in which several American companies also own stock.

Biggest Discovery Menhall has called it "the biggest oil discovery in the entire Persian Gulf area in 12 years. The newly-found field has a reserve of about 2 billion barrels." Menhall has applied for an exploitation contract. His chances apparently depend on whether he can reach a mutually acceptable terms with the UAR government.

Born in Lebanon As of now, however, it doesn't look too good for Menhall. A week ago the UAR government announced it had cancelled the Menhall company's drilling concession and banned the activities of the Syrian Arabian Oil Co. Menhall was born in Lebanon of Christian Lebanese parents in 1887. At the age of 12 his parents took him to Beloit. He helped his father run a confectionery store which as a sideline, also sold Oriental rugs. Menhall, as a young man, sold automobiles. He married Miss Edna Zille of Beloit and in 1917 they organized the Highway Trailer company, at Edgerton, Wis. Menhall, who had worked with a trailer company in Beloit, became president of the new firm.

Menhall and his wife also acquired an interest in the Edgerton National bank. They later were divorced. Mrs. Menhall still lives at Edgerton and is a vice president of the bank. Menhall left the Highway Trailer company in the 1930s. His half brother, Ernest A., became president and remained until 1947.

The Law and You

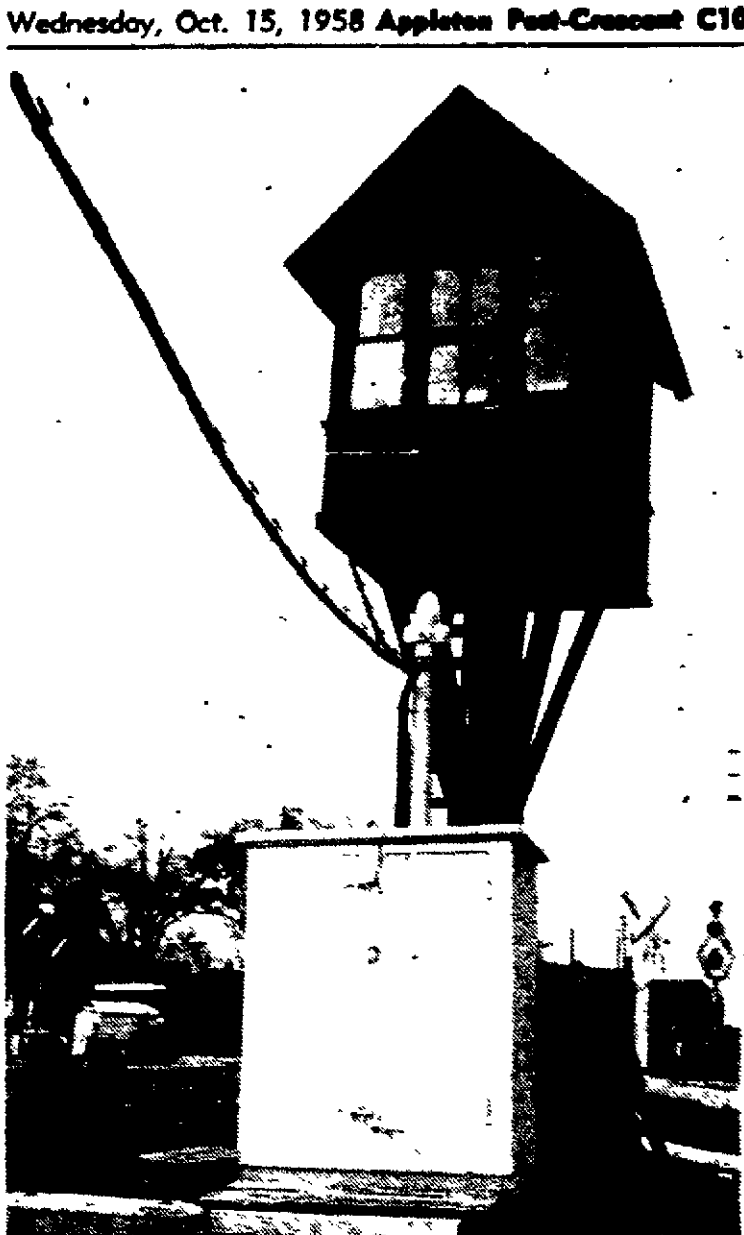

Anybody May Start Lawsuit But With Certain Exceptions

It is sometimes said, "Anybody may sue anybody for anything." If this statement means that anybody may start a lawsuit, it is more or less correct. The general rule is indeed that a person may sue any person, natural or corporate. However, there are important exceptions, some of which involve suits between members of a family.

This group of exceptions is most often applied in lawsuits arising out of automobile accidents. Suppose Mr. and Mrs. Smith, together with their two children, are involved in an accident. Mrs. Smith is driving her husband's car, not as his agent. One child is 14, lives at home and does not support itself. The other child is 21, lives alone and works for its own living. Mrs. Smith negligently runs the car off the road, all members of the family are injured and the car is damaged.

The common law rule was that spouses could not sue each other. A husband and wife were considered one person. As nobody can sue himself, spouses could not sue each other. The rule has been changed in Wisconsin by stat-

Fully Automatic Signals, Controlled by electronic boards like the one shown being installed at the Drew street crossing, will replace the familiar flagman's perch, above right, when the Chicago and North Western completes work on 10 city crossings in about five weeks.

Post-Crescent Photos

He probably cannot sue her for his repair bills or the loss of value of his car.

Wife Can Sue

On the other hand, if Mr. Smith had been driving his wife's car and negligently damaged it, Mrs. Smith could sue him for her personal injuries and also her property damage. The Wisconsin statutes clearly permit a wife to sue her husband for both types of loss.

Can the children sue their mother? An "unemancipated child" cannot sue its parent. Emancipation occurs when a parent agrees to a child's independence—to the child's leaving the nest. If a parent allows a child to leave the home and earn its own living, the child is emancipated. Thus, the 21 year-old child in our example may sue its mother, but the 14 year-old may not. The Wisconsin legislature has not changed these common law rules.

Automobile accidents have increased the number of family lawsuits, not because families are now more apt to quarrel but because of the possibilities of recovering compensation from an insurance company.

(The State Bar of Wisconsin offers this column to inform, not to advise. Facts may change the application of the law.)

Johnson-Kennedy Ticket Possible

Democratic Factions Begin to Form Areas of Common Interest

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE

Washington — A community of practical interest, though nothing nearly so firm as an actual alliance, is being broadened between the presidential possibilities for 1960. The immediate operating center of this movement is in the south and the border states.

White

Unless the nomination is to go to an advanced liberal — as well it might — the focus of convention power is likely to fall somewhere between Sens. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Johnson is prospectively the convention's dominant figure in the area running from the center to the right of the party — but not the far right. Kennedy is prospectively its most important figure in the area running left of center to the left — but not to the far left.

Johnson is a liberal southerner but still a southerner by geography — and being any kind of southerner has been bad news at any Democratic convention for many years.

Had Heart Attack
Johnson had a heart attack in 1955, and though there has been no recurrence, this is a political liability. Perhaps worst of all, as a Texan he is identified by many with the oil and gas barons and all that. Finally, there is a genuine continuing doubt that he would "go" for the nomination anyhow.

All the same, he is the most powerful single man in the Democratic party today — as well as its ablest politician, measured on actual performance.

Kennedy, too, has certain inherent liabilities. There is his religion — both parties have been afraid to nominate a Roman Catholic since the defeat of Alfred E. Smith in 1928. And there is his youth — he will be only 43 in 1960.

Powerful southern politicians, including a potential handful of governors, are speaking in increasingly high tones of Kennedy, privately as well as in public. Their attitude could easily be over-evaluated. Kennedy is not their first choice; rather, he is their choice if finally they must face some such alternative nominee as Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan or Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

Johnson First
Their true first choice undoubtedly would be Johnson. The pro-Kennedy movement in the south thus is basically a hidden pro-Johnson movement. That is, the southern pros hope it will be Johnson at the end but are maneuvering not to be left without any alternative position to a Mennen Williams, say, if it turns out Johnson will not seek the nomination or cannot get it.

The net of it is that Johnson and Kennedy are increasingly being presented as leaders of party groups between which there need be no irreconcilable conflict. One reason is that Kennedy has always had much southern goodwill — as was spectacularly shown in 1956 when, under southern leadership, he very nearly took the vice presidential nomination away from Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

But the rock-bottom reason for it all is this: Kennedy, though a northern liberal, is no extremist on the race question, though he has a good voting record from the Negroes' viewpoint. And Johnson is very far from an extremist southerner. He is, in fact, the principal reason why the first civil rights bill in eight decades got through the senate in 1957, unsatisfactory though it was to the all-out civil rights advocates.

Ike Declares Mail Helped His Program

Washington — President Eisenhower Tuesday credited a series of 450 letters, from the chief executive to friends over the country, with helping get the kind of defense reorganization bill he wanted from congress.

Eisenhower told about the letters at a birthday breakfast given by Republican workers. Using the story to illustrate the value of efforts to arouse public opinion, he called on the campaign workers to get busy with letters back home.

At one time when congress was considering the defense reorganization bill, Eisenhower said, the prospects looked gloomy for getting the kind of measure he wanted.

He decided he would write personal letters to business and professional friends urging support for his program.

The response in communications to congress was tremendous, Eisenhower said. He said that where there had been apathy about the bill previously, "there are such a flood of demand that passage of the bill in its original framework was assured."

Claim Anti-Catholic Materials Being Used Against Steinle

Miami Beach, Fla. — The head of the fair campaign practices committee said Monday his group has received complaints that anti-Catholic material was being circulated in Wisconsin against a candidate.

Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, the committee chairman, said his group was checking reports that anti-Catholic material was being used against Roland Steinle of Milwaukee, a Catholic and the Republican nominee for U.S. senator.

Taft also said his committee would consider national Democratic Chairman Paul Butler's request for an investigation of the use of Joseph P. Kamp's material on behalf of Republican candidates, including GOP office seekers in Wisconsin.

Both Butler and GOP national chairman Meade Alcorn have labeled material circulated by Kamp scurrilous.

Premier Tells Views on Pigs, Cows, Education

Moscow — Premier Nikita Khrushchev, heaping praise upon Stavropol collective farms, took the opportunity to present some of his own thoughts on cows, pigs, and education.

Khrushchev visited farms of the Stavropol area, in the southern part of European Russia, yesterday and presented the order of Lenin to the district for exceeding its grain quota.

In reporting the visit Tuesday Pravda, as well as Moscow radio, said Khrushchev made suggestions on how the farms could boost their output even more. But what warmed Khrushchev the most was the sight of students doing farm work.

This "work while you study" type of education will give Soviet youth an important role in the nation's economy as well as a better preparation for their future education, he said.

This education program has been under consideration for some time and was a highlight of a Khrushchev report to the communist party's central committee last month.

British Groups Ban Anti-Smoking Posters

London — Britain's commercial poster advertising organizations announced today they are banning an anti-smoking poster issued by a government medical committee. They claimed the sign exaggerates the danger of cancer. The poster shows only a cigarette—and the smoke curling from it forming the word "cancer."

It was issued by the government sponsored central council for health education. It has been given the job of telling Britons about the "suspected link between smoking and cancer."

Health Board Talks of Polio Clinic in City

Alderman Questions Present System, but Physician Lauds It

Outbreak of polio in Detroit brought a discussion Tuesday within the board of health over the possibilities of polio clinics in Appleton.

Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stillings questioned whether a good enough job is being done in the city to insure people, particularly children, against a polio epidemic.

Dr. Joseph L. Benton, acting chairman, said he believes city doctors are doing one of the best jobs in the country. Doctors, Dr. Benton explained, will give Salk shots to any child regardless of ability to pay.

Doctors Would Fight Clinics, he said, would be fought by the county medical society.

This is not a poor community, Dr. Benton went on, and doctors have as much desire to keep taxes down as anyone. Clinics would take tax money.

Statistics on how well the volunteer Salk program is working will be sought from school nurses. Dr. Benton said he was especially interested in the figures for children entering the first grade.

Inspect Ravine Near Pacific Bridge for Flooding Solution

Director of Public Works Edwin J. Duszynski and Park Board Secy. Arthur Jones Monday inspected the ravine near the Pacific street bridge. Flooding south of the bridge is an annual spring event. Jones explained, and Duszynski was asked to tell the board how it can be solved.

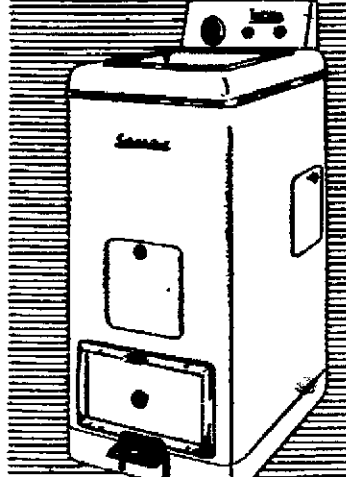

Flooding would prevent development of the area as part of the new Bellaire park, Jones said. Duszynski's report is expected shortly.

School Children Will Give Program

First, second and third graders of St. Matthew Evangelical Lutheran school will present a program with the association of parents and teachers meets at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the church. First and second graders will give a play and pantomime and the older youngsters will have a display of charts and scrap-books.

Quemoy Cease-Fire Seems to be Victory

Chiang Not as Easy to Lick as Reds Thought at Start of Battle

BY JOSEPH ALSOP
San Francisco—For anyone who has seen Quemoy at first hand, the sudden Chinese communist announcement of a week's cease-fire in the fight for the offshore islands has an exciting smell of approaching victory.

It is certainly premature to start the celebrations. It may be this communist maneuver is designed to conceal some dark new military design or complex new political scheme.

The central fact in the picture is the immense value of the ceasefire to the nationalist garrisons defending the little islands. After six weeks of shelling and five weeks of fairly effective artillery blockade, the garrisons are granted a week's respite, not just to lick their wounds, but to repair damage, receive supplies and reinforcements without hindrance, and restore and improve their situation in every possible way. Nothing could be more important than this suddenly granted opportunity. As this reporter indicated, the strange inefficiency of the communist military effort has left Big Quemoy with no more than superficial damage. But very nearly half the entire communist effort has been directed against the other, smaller islands in the Quemoy group. Little Quemoy, Erh Tan and Ta Tan. And here the damage has been by no means superficial.

Little Quemoy has a substantial civilian population, and Little Quemoy's people were dangerously short of food when the cease-fire was granted. On all three smaller islands, the basic ammunition reserves needed to repel a landing had begun to be dipped into. On one of the two Tan islands, only a single well was still usable. In a week, if the Communist cease-fire promise is not broken, all these deficiencies can be remedied on Little Quemoy and the Tans.

In short, just about everything the communists have achieved with not much less than half a million rounds of shelling will be sacrificed by this cease-fire. Unless the communists' long range military planning has been really fantastically bad, moreover, it is not possible to attribute the cease-fire to supply difficulties.

Supply Problem
To be sure, the much earlier 2-day cease-fire ostensibly granted by the communists "to give the Quemoy garrison time to reflect," was almost certainly attributable to a supply problem. All the evidence suggests that Peiping began the assault on the islands expecting them to fall like the walls of Jericho, at a blast of the trumpets.

There's Nothing to be Afraid of, Laurie Bear, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Baer, 608 E. North street, seems to say as she watches Dr. Keith M. Keane administer an inoculation. Laurie was one of children given shots at Edison school Monday during the first in a series of clinics held by public school nurses and the Outagamie County Medical society.

But all this happened five weeks ago. The communist positions in the Quemoy area are served by a road and railroad, which cost the communists something like 300,000 human lives to build. The road and railroad together have a daily capacity of at least 4,000 tons. The rate of supply expenditure, by shelling and in other ways, has been well below 4,000 tons a day. One cannot imagine the Chinese communist armies granted by the communists "to give the Quemoy garrison time to reflect," was almost certainly attributable to a the shelling because they are short of shells at the front. Rule out the supply explanation. Consider the great advantage to the nationalists of a week's cease-fire. Logically, you are then forced to conclude that Peiping is thinking about abandoning the attack on the offshore islands. And if this is indeed the case, it will be time to cheer the success won by the stoutness of the islands' garrisons and the firm policy of Sec. of State Dulles.

Return Man to Merrill to Face Check Charges

A Tomahawk man living in Appleton has been arrested by the Outagamie county sheriff's department and returned to Merrill to face charges of writing over $3,000 in checks on a former employer's account.

Sheriff's Lt. Jack Frenzel said Charles Oestreich, 20, was arrested Saturday. He was wanted by Merrill authorities, who said he had worked for a farmer who could not see well. Oestreich is alleged to have written checks for the wait for the arm to swell, or to a biopsy at once, to find out the man's account.

To Your Good Health

Some Doctors Innocently Frighten Their Patients

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.
More than likely a good many readers will regard today's column as quite unnecessary. On the other hand, I am convinced by letters, as well as by some personal experiences, that doctors sometimes say things quite innocently, yet Dr. Molner wind up needlessly frightening patients.

Before me is a letter from a woman in her latter 40's who had a breast removed because of cancer, with the lymph tissue under the arm removed, too, because the cancer had spread to that point.

The letter says that her doctors have been well-pleased with the surgery and the cobalt treatment afterward but "On my last visit, a month ago, he mentioned to me that it was 14 years since my cobalt treatments, and that if my arm should swell, or anything unusual should happen, to contact him immediately. "Since that visit I have been terribly uneasy. I scrutinize myself every day and I just don't know what he's expecting to happen. I have been doing some reading and have discovered that when the malignancy was up under the armpit as mine was, the chances of recovery are not once. This advice to report nearly as good as when it is "anything unusual" is, rather, just in the breast itself. There is not, in this picture, any reason I can see to "expect" anything to happen. Immediately after an illness or operation, there usually is no need to warn a patient to times the remark is interpreted the other way, and the patient is so conscious of the situation that he remains on watch alertly. But after a certain length of time has elapsed, the patient assumes that the episode is all over and there is no need to watch for symptoms.

Omen Of Disaster
So that is the time at which the doctor likes to offer a little added warning to be watchful. This doesn't imply that the doctor expects something to happen. Yet, as we know these eating fads.—J.T.B.

Yes, sir. So do I. Such a remark can be taken by the patient as a dreadful omen of disaster, when it isn't at all. As a matter of fact, in the case under discussion, we can be sure of one thing: If the physician had any reason even to suspect that malignant changes were occurring, he wouldn't tell the patient to wait for the arm to swell, or to a biopsy at once, to find out the man's account.

reason to suspect (and I'm just guessing on this) that the large amount of radiation treatment has caused some secondary irritation. Or some such thing.

What I want to make clear is that rarely if ever would a physician tell a patient to watch for anything unusual if he expected something disastrous. Rather, he would make an early appointment for another examination, or would start some further tests at once. This advice to report "anything unusual" is, rather, the sort of advice you give when you don't foresee trouble, but merely want to keep the patient from becoming complacent or careless.

Yet, as we can see, sometimes the remark is interpreted the other way, and the patient suffers all that fear situation that he remains on watch alertly. But after a certain length of time has elapsed, the patient assumes that the episode is all over and there is no need to watch for symptoms.

Likely to be Wrong
"Dear Dr. Molner: Some time ago I read an article stating that people should cut meats and dairy products to prevent hardening of the arteries. I think there should be some restriction on all of these eating fads.—J.T.B."

Yes, sir. So do I. Such a remark can be taken by the patient as a dreadful omen of disaster, when it isn't at all. As a matter of fact, in the case under discussion, we can be sure of one thing: If the physician had any reason even to suspect that malignant changes were occurring, he wouldn't tell the patient to wait for the arm to swell, or to a biopsy at once, to find out the man's account.

There might, of course, be a sound, but costly ing beef-steak on a black eye is sound, but expensive at the present price of beef. The steak is moist and cool and it helps retard the blackness. A cloth dipped in cold water and wrung out will do the same.

Title Implications to Spice Annual Jay-Rocket Battle

Several weeks ago in this space, I discussed at length the pros and cons of the Fox Cities Foxes' renewing their working agreement with Washington. The time is nearing for the club directors to decide on that vital issue. Right now, it looks very much as if it will be Washington again. There reportedly is a difference of opinion among the directors, but the "pro Senator" group is evidently in the majority. We can only repeat our earlier estimate that renewing with Washington is a greater gamble than adopting a new major league parent. It's possible, of course, that the Senators really can field a better Three-I league club in '59. Presumably, they have already indicated they would send the top player or two from each of their D clubs and most of the better Class C Missoula players to bolster a returning nucleus that would probably include "Potato" Pascual. If the directors stand pat, they'll be doing it with their eyes wide open. They're aware of this indisputable fact: area fans won't support a losing team indefinitely.

Tom Wiesner, Neenah sophomore fullback, is the leading rusher for the unbeaten Wisconsin Badgers. He has gained 143 yards in three games for a per-carry average of 7.2. Wiesner's 63-yard non-scoring run against Miami is the sixth longest such play in UW annals and is the third longest ever made by a first-year Badger. Harland Carl, now a Neenah High coach, ran 81 yards in a non-scoring jaunt against Marquette as a soph in '51; and Alan Ameche went 64 yards against Purdue as a freshman in '51.

The Figure Filberts who keep track of every conceivable kind of World Series record missed the boat on at least one probable new mark. Spectator Ralph Reuter, of Appleton, caught three baseballs in a single game. Attending the World Series opener in Milwaukee, Reuter caught a batting practice homer off the bat of Joe Adcock, a foul ball hit by Hank Aaron—and he forgets who hit the third one (Reuter probably was too excited about his souvenir bonanza by that time).

According to the registered mail volume at the post office, nearly twice as many Appleton fans received Series tickets this year as in '57.

John Bogus, the Chicagoan who crashed the playing field in the final game of the World Series, received a bogus identification from a Chicago paper. The paper's picture caption listed Appleton as Bogus' home town. After winning a bet by sliding into second base and shaking Gil McDougald's hand, Bogus did a "Willie Galtmore" in breaking away from a band of ushers and attendants who pursued him all over the right field. I understand that the merry performance—which took some of the sting out of the Yanks' 4-run inni just minutes earlier—was not even shown on the TV screen.

Rumor has it that one of the shortstops the Braves have in mind as a possible successor to Johnny Logan is Pittsburgh's Dick Groat. If they are able to deal for Groat—who is almost four years younger than Logan—the Braves would no doubt have to throw in some pitching talent to boot.

Appleton's 20-6 loss to West last weekend was its first setback in the daylight and on the home field since 1954. Prior to encountering West—which has dealt AHS three of its six losses in the last four seasons—the Terrors had gone unbeaten for 12 straight games (11 wins and a tie) at Whiting field. And, each of the other five losses since '54 came at in night games.

If the Terrors are to avert their lowest finish since '53 (when they came in last), they'll have to patch up their porous pass defense. Six of their opponents' nine touchdowns have come through the air. This chronic weakness also accounted for their lone loss last year when West's Tom LaCombe fired away.

LaCombe, who had another good aerial day last Friday, is related to Hurdie McCrary, Jr., former West high star and now an Ade Dillon coaching aide.

The "Wishful Thinking" department: What a comfort it would have been to have seen such Fox Cities area players as Pete Kasson, Bob Osiewalski and Dick Montonati in Lawrence uniforms instead of Ripon red last Saturday. Players of such caliber—who are annually "getting away"—could help return the Vikes to the gridiron heights they enjoyed for so long. The abilities of "Osie" and Kasson are already well known—and soph Montonati showed Saturday that he can "cut it" in collegiate circles.

The "Whatever became of..." Department: "Fat" Pat Seery, who once roamed the outfield for the Appleton Papermakers and later hit four homers in a single game for the Chicago White Sox, is now a custodian with the St. Louis public school system. Pat was dropped by the Sox after the '49 season and shuttled around the minors for a while before hanging up the spikes.

Eddie Lenahan, a familiar pre-World war II state baseball figure, died the other day in Madison. Lenahan, who had many friends and acquaintances in the Fox Cities, managed the old Madison Blues for many years and also played first base. Of the field, he was a soft-spoken gent, but once he donned the baseball flannels, he was as aggressive as a Leo Durocher or a John McGraw—and that especially went for his attitude toward umpires.

Friday's Games:
Kimberly at Two Rivers.
Neenah at Menasha.
Kaukauna at Clintonville.
Shawano at New London.

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Neenah — Neenah versus Menasha. The neighborhood struggle, which this year has more at stake than the usual prestige that goes with a win in the 62-year old natural rivalry, highlights this weekend's Mid-Eastern conference football agenda.

The traditional foes collide at 7:30 Friday night at Menasha's Butte des Morts field. Other league tangles, all Friday night affairs, are Kimberly at Two Rivers, Kaukauna at Clintonville and Shawano at New London.

For the first time in a number of seasons, the Neenah-Menasha game will go a long way in determining the Mid-Eastern loop champ. The winner will, for a week at least, occupy the top rung in the standings.

Only Unbeaten Clubs
Menasha is unbeaten in four league engagements and defending champion Neenah has three wins and a tie. They are the only league clubs who do not have a loss.

The Jays will attempt to reverse last year's humiliating 49-6 setback. They were given a boost with last week's blanking of Kaukauna. It also will be the Menasha homecoming.

Neenah, on the other hand, wasn't extended in its last two games against Two Rivers and New London, both winless, and had a chance for most of its many injured players to recover. All except Bill Braun and Dick Wilson, who are out for the season, are expected to be available.

Top Quarterbacks
Both have good defensive lines with the edge in size going to the Jays. Menasha has the faster backs but Neenah is deeper. The Jays' Dave Robinson and Neenah's Bill Kuehl probably are the top two quarterbacks in the circuit.

The Kaukauna - Clintonville game draws No. 2 rating on the weekend bill. The Ghosts, deadlocked for third with Kimberly, remain in the title picture. They still must face the Papermakers and Rockets.

Clintonville's stock has declined since its hard-fought 7-7 deadlock with Neenah. It has successive losses to Menasha and Kimberly and is pretty much out of title contention.

Kimberly Favored
Kimberly is favored to record its fourth straight triumph at the expense of Two Rivers, which is still looking for its first victory. The Papermakers have only a loss to Neenah to blot its mark. After playing Two Rivers, it will be forced to close against Kaukauna and Menasha. Shawano, which came up with a mild upset by beating Two Rivers, is favored to pick up its second win.

University of Wisconsin Ends, five of whom are shown above, will have their work cut out Saturday when they try to rush Iowa's great passer, Randy Duncan. Duncan completed nine of 13 throws against Indiana last week. Shown left to right are Jim Holmes, Earl Hill, Co-Captain Dave Kocourek, Jim Rogers and Allan Schoonover. Since this picture was taken, Holmes was injured, and he probably won't play Saturday.

Coaching Clinic Starr's Show Against Colts Slated Nov. 15 Best 1-Game Job in NFL

Kitzman, Nord To Appear on Kimberly Program

A coaching clinic will be held at Kimberly High school Saturday, Nov. 15. Gil Frank, district representative of the Wisconsin High school coaches association, will be in charge. The speakers and demonstrators will include Eric Kitzman, Oshkosh State college coach, and Ron Nord, Oshkosh High school coach, who will headline the basketball portion of the clinic.

Other sports on the agenda will be cross country and wrestling. Gilbert Mahr, Hartford High coach, will speak on cross country, while Jim Douglas, of Coleman High, will handle wrestling.

All coaches are being invited to attend, according to Frank. A 9 p.m. registration will open the day's program.

Negotiations for Winter 'Heavy' Title Bout Fall Through

New York — Negotiations for a heavyweight title bout at Madison Square garden this winter have fallen through.

Julius Helfand, chairman of the State Athletic commission who has been helping in the negotiations, said Cus D'Amato, manager of champion Floyd Patterson, had turned down two suitable December dates offered at a "reasonable rental."

The Viking frosh have been practicing regularly with the Vike varsity. The 27-player team, coached by Gene Davis, had a lengthy drill on its own last Sunday.

Davis has revealed his probable starters for Thursday's contest.

Henry Cooper May Get Shot At Patterson

Wins Debatable Decision Over Folley in London

London — It appeared today that the strange, circuitous search to find a man to fight Floyd Patterson has ended.

The man is Henry Cooper, 24-year-old blond Cockney who in addition to fighting, plasters walls for a living. Cooper, a little known heavyweight, got a debatable decision Tuesday night after 10 rounds against Zora Folley, an American who ranks No. 2 in line for Patterson's world title.

Cuts Easily
Cooper boxes only fairly, and he cuts easily. He lost four of his last six fights, has fought professionally only 30 times and has spent much time recently as a chopping block-sparring mate for main-bouters.

His main claim to fame hitherto was a 1-round KO over newly crowned British heavyweight champ Brian London when both were just out of the novice class.

But Referee Tommy Little saw Cooper as the winner against the shocked Folley. Cooper's past now is forgiven.

If England and Promoter Harry Levene have anything to do with it, Cooper's going in against Patterson for the world title in an open air bout next summer — probably June.

Telephone Talk
Levene talked by trans-Atlantic phone to his old friend and collaborator Cus D'Amato, who manages Patterson, shortly after the fight.

"I say now Cooper and Floyd Patterson will meet in London next summer for the world heavyweight championship," said Levene after talking to D'Amato.

The Associated Press saw the Folley-Cooper fight as a draw or going to Folley by a slight margin. Several London boxing writers called it Folley's fight.

Ralph Dupas Favored Over Turner Tonight

Montreal — Ralph Dupas turned 23 Tuesday. Tonight he hopes to celebrate the birthday with a victory over veteran Gil Turner in a television battle of welterweight contenders at Montreal's forum. He's a 7-5 choice to have a happy party.

Dupas is one of the slickest boxers in the welterweight division. His cleverness and speed are the reasons why he's been made the favorite although he's ranked sixth among the contenders and Turner is ranked third.

The curly-haired Southerner, a pro since he was 14, moved out of the lightweight division for good when he was knocked out by lightweight champion Joe Brown in a title bout last May. He had been fighting at about 135 pounds and had to make 134 or less for Brown. He weighed 134.

Dupas' record is 72-9-6. Turner, 27, has a 57-16-2 record.

Bays' Position In Statistics Is Disappointing

Green Bay — National Football league statistics made their first public appearance of the 1958 season today and there are these noteworthy items:

(1) The Packers aren't setting the league afire figure-wise and (2) the quarterbacks in Sunday's Packer - Redskins clash in Washington are both digit leaders.

Let's start with the pleasant — Eddie Le Baron, the Redskins' little quarterback who is leading the league in passing, and the Packers' Bart Starr whose performance in the Baltimore game ranks as the best in the league thus far this season.

Averages 9.68 Yards
Le Baron, who stands 5-7 and packs 165 pounds, has averaged 9.68 yards on 44 attempts (leaders are based on yards per attempt). He completed 25 for 426 yards for two touchdowns and three interceptions.

Starr, tenth in the league, doesn't match Eddie's average gain, with his 6.79, but the Packer strike thrower has completed 50 out of 90 pitches for 594 yards and two touchdowns. Starr has had six interceptions — four less than he had stolen all last year.

Le Baron's completion percentage is 56.8; Starr's 55.6. The Redskins, in preparing

Jimmy Brown NFL's Top Ground Gainer

Redskins' LeBaron, Cardinals' Reynolds Pace Loop Passers

Philadelphia — Husky Jimmy Brown of Paul Brown's Cleveland Browns is leading the National Football league in ground gaining with more than half as much yardage in three games than he pounded out in last year's entire 12 games schedule.

Now in his second year of pro football, Brown gained 942 yards in 1957. In the first three games of 1958, he has accounted for 482 yards for the unbeaten Browns.

Cleveland's "bread and butter" guy has carried the ball 75 times, averaging 6.4 yards per effort and 160 yards a game. He's taken dead aim on Steven Van Buren's seasonal yards gained rushing title of 1,146, set by the former Philadelphia Eagles' star in 1949.

Wilson Ranks 2nd

Tom Wilson of Los Angeles ranks second in the art of carrying the ball with 280 yards, followed by newcomer Bobby Mitchell, also of Cleveland, with 262, and Jon Arnett, Los Angeles, 253.

Little Eddie LeBaron of Washington, the lightest man in the league, has the heaviest passing average. The mighty mite, as he is known in the pro football world, sports a per pass average of 9.6 a throw. In all, LeBaron has tossed 44, completed 25 for 426 yards and two touchdowns. His percentage of completion is 56.8.

Round Table, the New Money-Winning champion of turfdom, appears to be chortling as he contemplates a bucketful of hay topped by a frosting of Uncle Sam's greenbacks in his stall at Santa Anita (Calif.) track Tuesday. for the Packers, undoubtedly are making a special blow-by-blow view of Starr's 320-yard pitching performance against the Colts last Sunday. He attempted a Packer record 46 and completed a Packer record 26, the best showing he's ever made.

Both Green Bay and Washington are not listed in the top rushers. The reason might be backfield balance.

The Redskins shift the duties of rushing pretty much between Jim Podoley, Don Bosseler and Ed Sutton, while four Packer backs are getting their licks in—Don McIlhenny, the leader with 105 yards, Howie Ferguson (87), Paul Hornung (34) and Jim Shanley (23).

The Packers have the ninth rank in pass catching—Ferguson, and that fellow represents quite a switch. He's a fullback, you know, and has caught a dozen passes with 10 each, McIlhenny and Billy Howton just missed the top 10. The Redskins' Great Johnny Carson is seventh with 13 catches.

Hornung, with five field goals in eight attempts plus a touchdown and five extra points, is sixth in scoring, while Washington isn't represented among the leaders. Puntingwise, the Redskins' Sam Baker is second with 45.7, while Packer Max McGee is fifth on 42.4. Former Packer Dick Deschaine, recently traded to Cleveland, is third with 43.3.

Plan Meeting
On the way home from the 24-17 loss to Baltimore in Milwaukee Sunday, the Packer players confided that "We've got to get that winning attitude and this Washington game is the place to get it."

The players were scheduled to hold a meeting among themselves this week to talk over "winning." The players were most anxious to get "Scooter off on the winning track" against Baltimore.

They feel that "it will just take one victory and we'll start rolling."

Conley Scores 7 Points for Celtics

Boston — Gene Conley, who denies his basketball venture is due to a dead pitching arm, is financing his own bid to make the Boston Celtics' squad.

The 6-8 Milwaukee Braves' righthander scored seven points for Boston Tuesday night during a 15-minute stint in a National Basketball association exhibition game with Cincinnati at Burlington, Vt. year he managed the class C Boston won, 101-95.

"I will be back in baseball next spring," Conley said.

Lightly-Regarded British Heavyweight Henry Cooper, left, ducks his head and wades into Zora Folley, America's leading contender in the heavyweight division, in the first round of their bout in London's Wembley stadium Tuesday night. Cooper came off the floor to win an upset decision over Folley in a close 10-round battle. Cooper was dropped in the third round for a count of eight.

Lo Berg Jars 567 Elks American Set

The fifth leading three-some of the Appleton women's kegling season, a 567, was turned in by Lo Berg in the Elks Women's American League Tuesday evening. She rumbled a 202 for the Plank Dandy team (13-5) which shares first place with Cigaret Service and Penney's.

Esther Behnke's 204 for Verrier-Schmit was the handsomest game. She wound up with a 552, also socking a 193 singleton.

Sawyer Names 3 To Philadelphia Coaching Staff

Philadelphia — Manager Eddie Sawyer of the Philadelphia Phillies today announced selection of Dick Carter, Ken Silvestri and Johnny Riddle as coaches.

Sawyer said he is still considering applicants for the pitching coach vacancy.

Silvestri, 42, will have full charge of the bullpen. This former Chicago White Sox pitcher has been with the Phillies' staff since 1949. This, in a dummy scrimmage, the Badgers held a stiff defensive workout against Iowa.

Only one regular, end Jim.

Jefferson Gym Open For Badminton Players

Appleton's Jefferson school gym will be open from 7 to 10 p.m. Thursdays (starting this week) for the use of badminton players.

Using the gym's facilities at that time will be members of the Appleton Badminton club whose officers are: Ruth Bateman, president; Ken Ludwig, vice president, and Ruth Van Handel, secretary-treasurer. Membership is open to the public.

Three courts and shower facilities are available at the gym as are racquets and shuttlecocks.

UW's Holmes May Miss Iowa Game

Madison — Wisconsin Coach Milt Bruhn who has been able to unfold a new wrinkle each Saturday of the football season, Tuesday handed some new pass plays to his Badgers.

Wisconsin will use the aerial formations next Saturday against Iowa, billed as the best passing team the Badgers have encountered so far this fall.

After drilling the new plays in a dummy scrimmage, the Badgers held a stiff defensive workout against Iowa.

Cardinals' rookie quarterback, is second with a 9.5 average, 37 for 63, 601 yards gained, 5 TDs and a 56.7 completion percentage. Third is Billy Wade of Los Angeles with these figures: average 8.55, 42 for 74, 633 yards, 4 TDs, 56.8 completion percentage.

In other departments these are the early season leaders: Pass receiving—Ray Berry, Baltimore, 19 caught for 266 yards and 3 TDs. R. C. Owens is second with 16 for 187.

Scoring — Brown of the Browns 48 points on 8 TDs.

Holmes, is expected to miss the game. He suffered a hip injury in the Purdue game last Saturday.

John Crow of the Cards is second, 5 TDs, 30 points. Punting — Don Chandler, New York Giants, averaging 46.2 yards to 45.7 for Sam Baker of Washington.

Fast returns — Billy Wells, Philadelphia, 5 for 91 yards, averaging 18.2. John Morris of the Chicago Bears is second, 4 for 48 yards and a 12-yard average.

Kickoff returns — Len Lyles of Baltimore, 3 for 147 and a 30-yard average. Green Bay's Al Carmichael is second, 3 for 115, a 38.3 average.

Deny Report That Miller Beer Interests Will Purchase Braves

Milwaukee — A report that the Milwaukee Braves are about to be sold cropped up again early today but was quickly denied here.

The report, from a source which has been reliable in the past, said that a deal had been made to sell the club to the Milwaukee brewing interests and that the principals were waiting for an appropriate time to announce it.

Norman Klug, president of the Miller company, said in Milwaukee, "The report is not correct. If it were I would tell you so. I don't think I should expand on it in any way."

John Quinn, general manager of the Braves, declared "I don't know anything about it. It is certainly something that would have to be discussed with Mr. Perini."

Lou Perini, owner of the Braves, was not available for comment.

During the recent World Series, however, when similar reports were heard Perini denied them. "I don't know how these reports get started," he said then.

Texas' Bryant Chosen as Top Lineman

By The Associated Press

A couple of guards achieved the goal of every lineman by running for touchdowns last week, but the Associated Press "Line-man of the Week" honor today went to an end, big Bob Bryant of Texas.

Bryant snared the forward pass for a touchdown that enabled Texas to tie Oklahoma at 14-14 and set the stage for Bob Lackey's winning extra point from placement.

Catches 4 Passes
Texas, behind 14-18, had the ball on the Oklahoma seven, third down, in the closing minutes of play. "You guys have just got to get open," quarterback Lackey told his ends in the huddle.

"Golly, I did, and that Lackey threw me the ball," the jubilant Bryant said afterward.

Altogether, Bryant caught four passes for 29 yards and played an outstanding defensive game.

It was a cruel twist of fate for Oklahoma guard Jim Davis. Only a few minutes earlier, he had grabbed a Texas handoff and raced 24 yards for a touchdown that put the Sooners ahead. Gene Appel, Columbia guard, also joined the list. He intercepted a Yale pass and raced 65 yards for a touchdown as Columbia upset the Eli, 13-0.

Holyoke, Mass. — Harold Gomes, 131, Providence, outpointed Johnny Beans, 130, New York, 10.

Fullback Safran Moved Back to Quarterback Spot

Milwaukee—A stiff contact drill that ended with a 30-minute scrimmage and bandages were the order of business for the Marquette football team Tuesday.

Before the workout Coach Johnny Druze began patching up his battered team.

Reserve fullback Ernie Safran, a quarterback a season ago, was made an understudy for signal caller Pete Hall who may not be able to play Saturday night against Boston college because of a broken finger. Also a doubtful starter was reserve quarterback John Cornell, out of action since he suffered a concussion in the Wisconsin game.

In another switch, Ernie Garcia, a quarterback candidate, was moved to a halfback spot to take advantage of his running potential and defensive ability.

And two players were groomed to replace tackle Jim Szarkwark who suffered a shoulder injury as the Warriors were beaten 40-8 last Saturday by Penn State. Tom Welsch, moved from center to tackle three weeks ago, and Joe Anderer probably will share the assignment.

Choose Hogan And Snead

Old Pros are U. S. Representatives in Canada Cup Play

New York — Ben Hogan and Sam Snead are next to get a shot at trying to stem the tide of international sports trophies flowing to other lands.

These two old pros have been named as Uncle Sam's representatives in the sixth annual Canada cup golf matches at the Club De Golf in Mexico City Nov. 20-23.

Torakichi Nakamura and Koichi Ono of Japan won both the team and individual championships last year in Tokyo. Nakamura was the individual winner, beating out Snead and Hogan.

Around 30 countries will send their two best golfers to Mexico City next month for the event. Snead and Hogan teamed at Wentworth, England, in 1956 to capture the Canada cup team prize. Hogan won the individual trophy with a score of 177.

UW Varsity, Freshman Cage Practice Opens

Madison — Basketball practice for University of Wisconsin varsity and freshmen squads was scheduled to begin officially today.

Coach Harold Bud Foster said he expected between 27 and 30 candidates, including nine lettermen, to report for the varsity.

Lettermen include Sam Barnard, Robert Barneson, Fred Clow, Ray Gross, Brian Kulas, James Rognaby, Robert Serbiak, John Stack and Steve Stephens.

Gross will be available for the first semester only which includes eight non-conference and four Big Ten games.

Stack, a 6-7 center who had an operation on his knee last spring, has been working daily and should be in shape for the season's opener with Marquette Dec. 2, Foster said.

Colleges Eye Better Balance

Forward Pass Making Comeback On Practice Fields This Week

By the Associated Press

The forward pass making a comeback? To look around some of the nation's college football practice fields you would think so.

With all the talk of wide-open, spread offensive formations, lonesome halfbacks, ends and hotdog salesmen and slot, split, tight and up-side-down T formations, the forward pass has taken a back seat.

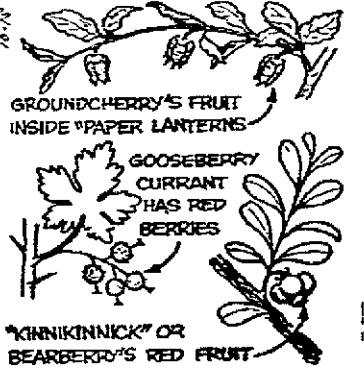

All of this has lessened the scoring a bit too much for some coaches, and they are returning to a better balance of attack after last weekend's games.

Army, the nation's No. 1 team and leader in the new offensive fashions with its bazooka and "lonesome end," realizes that it does not have an infallible weapon. Notre Dame did not allow it to run rampant, though losing, 14-2 ND's Passing Weak

Coach Earl Blak won his game with a cute passing attack that gave balance when the Irish least expected it. He now faces Virginia and is letting his receivers have a week of intensive instruction to improve on the 100 yards on seven of 16 passes against Notre Dame.

The Irish, on the other hand, had a miserable 11 yards passing yardage on four of nine completions.

UPLAND GAME BIRDS LOVE BERRIES OF ALL TYPES (INCLUDE WILD VARIETIES OF POPULAR DOMESTICS WITH THOSE LESS KNOWN--3 OF LATTER ARE SHOWN). HUNDREDS OF VARYING SPECIES ARE FOUND THROUGHOUT NATURE.

Coach Terry Brennan, facing his fourth different offense against Duke, is spending most of the time coordinating Michigan on successive week-end and perfecting the passing ends.

Hayes Dissatisfied
Green Wave Coach Andy Pilney is prepping his boys for the same kind of attack after getting 120 yards on 13 of 18 tosses against Mississippi last weekend. Tulane lost, 19-8, with its ground attack netting a meager 28 yards.

Woody Hayes of Ohio State still isn't satisfied with his ground offense being able to carry the load. He has quarterback Frank Kremlas and Co. working to perfect an aerial game that got 44 yards beating Illinois, 19-13.

Wisconsin, the Big Ten's dark horse, didn't gain a yard against Purdue by its passing, and must face tough Iowa this weekend. Coach Milt Bruhn, unhappy with the passing situation not being able to balance a 211-yard rushing yardage count, has the boys working on the pass patterns.

Jim Tatum meets his old Maryland assistant Tommy Mont and the Terps, but has an offense that scored only two touchdowns in winning the past two games. Big Jim is looking for his passers to bone up the scores and make the difference against Maryland. They hit six of sixteen for 93 yards in beating South Carolina last week.

However, Kastelz said, a trade may be made at a realignment meeting at Memphis next month and Jacksonville put in the International league with other eastern teams from Canada to Cuba. Ralph Beard Returns To Pro Basketball
Baltimore — Ralph Beard, former college and Olympic star, will make a return to professional basketball this season with the Baltimore Bullets in the Eastern league.

The two-time All-America at Kentucky 10 years ago played with Indianapolis in the National Basketball association after his graduation. An investigation of college basketball scandals in 1951 led to Beard being put on probation for three years. He went into the Army when his cousin Agriculture department, operator of the fair.

At the opening of a meeting with leaders of Wisconsin harness racing, Masterson said race receipts for the 1958 fair were $3,413.75, against expenses of $13,062.34.

He said the largest attendance was 8,000 on the third day of the racing program, but pointed out admission was free and that there also was a Dairy day program for grandstand visitors. Paid attendance the other two days was 2,582.

Harness Racing May be Through At State Fair

Milwaukee — Harness racing at the Wisconsin State fair has been finishing out of the money, and Tuesday fair manager W. M. Masterson recommended it be ruled off the track.

Iowa's Nocern, Miller to Miss Wisconsin Tilt

OSU to Start 3 Sophomores Against Indiana Saturday

Northwestern — Taking no chances on picking up any injuries, the Wildcats went through a light contact scrimmage. Every member of the squad participated, indicating Northwestern will be at full strength for Michigan.

Iowa — Fullback John Nocern is not expected to make the trip to Wisconsin. He's hobbling on injured knees. End Al Miller will also miss the game. Fred Long, Gene Mosley and Johnny Brown were running at fullback.

Ohio State — The Buckeyes will start three sophomores against Indiana. They are tackle Jim Tyrer, guard Ernie Wright and guard Oscar Hauener. Ohio State was warned not to take Indiana too lightly.

Minnesota — It'll be homecoming for the Gophers against Illinois Saturday. Coach Murray Warmath had his team go through an intensive drill on defending against Illinois plays.

Purdue — Coach Jack Minkopf made three tentative shifts for the Michigan State game. Given a chance to work out with the first team were tackle Jerry Beabout, guard Fred Brandel and halfback Tom Barnett.

Michigan State — The next few weeks will tell the story for Michigan State, according to Coach "Duffy" Daugherty. He looks for the usual tough battle always provided by Purdue. Daugherty claims the Spartans have not as yet established themselves as a great team.

Colavito's .620 Wins Majors' Slugging Title

Ernie Banks 1st Cub to Win NL Crown Since '30

New York — Ernie Banks, the major league leader in home runs and runs batted in, also won the National league slugging championship with a .616 average in 1958. He is the first Chicago Cub to win the title since 1930.

Hack Wilson did it in 1930 on the strength of 56 home runs. "Rocky" Colavito of Cleveland captured the American league slugging crown with a .620 mark, figures compiled by The Associated Press also showed today.

Mays is 2nd Banks pounded out 24 doubles, 11 triples and 47 home runs among his 193 hits. He compiled 380 total bases—also a big league high. The 27-year-old shortstop drove in 129 runs.

Gene Conley, who pitched infrequently for the Milwaukee Braves during the past season, has rejoined Boston's basketball Celtics for a tryout. Asked whether he was thinking about quitting baseball, Conley replied "are you kidding? I'd never quit baseball." Gene played 30 game with the Celtics during the 1952-3 season.

Stan Musial of St. Louis was fourth with 528 followed by Frank Thomas of Pittsburgh, 527; Harry Anderson of Philadelphia, 524; Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco, 512 and Frank Robinson of Cincinnati, 504.

Musial holds the National league record for the highest slugging average among players who have been in the majors 12 or more seasons. His lifetime mark is .578. The American league standard is .692 set by Babe Ruth.

Colavito had fewer total bases than both Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees and Bob Cerv of Kansas City at the close of the 1958 campaign. But the Indians' outfielder had only 489 official times at bat compared to 519 for Mantle and 515 for Cerv.

Slugging averages are based on total bases accumulated on all hits and times at bat.

41 Homers Colavito had 41 homers, second only to Mantle's 42 in the junior circuit. "Rocky," who wound up with 303 total bases, also had 26 doubles and three triples. Mantle had 307 total bases and finished second in the slugging competition with a .592 average. Cerv was third at .590 with 304 total bases which included 19 doubles, seven triples and 38 homers.

Ted Williams of Boston, who led the AL in slugging with a .731 mark in 1957, was fourth with .584. Then came Roy Sievers of Washington, .544, and Jackie Jensen of Boston, .535.

Sooners Open Bid for 11th Straight Title

Norman, Okla. — "I hope we play as hard and do as well as we did against Texas." Thus a proudly pessimistic Bud Wilkinson launches his Oklahoma Sooners into another Big Eight conference campaign.

Oklahoma's effort against Texas fell a little short as the Longhorns took a 15-15 decision. But most Sooner faithful feel their team will bounce back strongly in the conference opener against Kansas Saturday at Lawrence.

There's hope Oklahoma again will spring unscathed through the Big Eight schedule and into the Orange bowl come January. Bud's still here, isn't he?

Wilkinson, now in his twelfth season at Oklahoma, has never lost a conference game. His teams have won 10

Right-to-Work Election Issue

Likely to Become Law in Ohio but Could Hurt GOP

BY ART PARKS Columbus, Ohio — The right-to-work issue has really stirred things up in this year's Ohio election. Even seasoned politicians are having their troubles figuring the outcome.

Right now, the Ohio capitol is solidly Republican from cellar to cupola. All officeholders from Gov. C. William O'Neill on down seek reelection, not for 2-year terms as in the past, but for 4-year terms. Another GOP stalwart, John W. Bricker, is a candidate for a third U. S. senate term.

This strange and fascinating campaign, in the opinion of competent observers, appears to be shaping up in this singular pattern: Ohio voters probably will write into the state constitution a right-to-work section — a provision prohibiting union shop contracts which require union membership as a condition for holding a job.

But Republican Gov. O'Neill, who is stumping for the proposal, appears on the ragged edge of defeat after only one term in office.

His Democratic challenger, Michael V. DiSalle, who personally opposes the union shop prohibition, sees victory finally within his grasp despite a trouncing by O'Neill in 1956.

Bricker appears a cinch to coast to another victory, this one over former Ohio Congressman-at-large Stephen M. Young, Democrat.

Scared but Hopeful

Young has opposed the amendment from the first.

Republicans who now control the Ohio delegation in the U. S. house 17-6 and both houses of the Ohio legislature, are plainly scared — but hoping for the best.

Why, after rolling up huge majorities in 1956, are they running scared this year? Three reasons:

1. They fear that a Democratic trend, noted nationally, has seeped into Ohio. They recall that for the first time in a generation Democrats outvoted Republicans in the May primaries—by 100,000 votes.

2. They expect organized labor's desperate campaign to stave off the right-to-work proposal will lure many union members to the polls. Republicans figure the unionists aren't going to walk out of the polling places without marking their ballots for candidates as well as issues. Among union members, the GOP further figures, there are more Democrats than Republicans.

3. Voter registration, in the populous counties which require it, is at a record high for a non-presidential election year. Election officials say the right-to-work issue is responsible. True, they say, many Ohioans registered so they would be able to vote for it, but the big push for registrations was among the groups fighting it.

O'Neill was the golden boy of Ohio politics when he was

Badger Plug Bridge Plea Sent State

Offer to Sell Strip At Industrial Park Forwarded for Study

Badger Plug company's request that 90 feet of the old John street bridge be kept after the College-Candee high bridge is finished was referred to the state highway commission Tuesday by the board of public works.

The state commission has included demolition of the old bridge in its specifications for construction of the new bridge, it was explained.

Badger Plug said it needs the 90 feet near its plant on John street to provide room for maneuvering trucks.

Other board action: The offer of George Vandenberg, 1103 S. Perkins street, to sell a 63-foot-wide strip adjacent on the north to the city industrial park was referred to the council's and chamber of commerce's industrial development committees and to Appleton Industrial Development corporation. Vandenberg has trimmed his asking price from $12,600 to $11,800.

Chief of Police Hendricks will be invited to the next board meeting to explain plans for his proposed enlargement of the police station. He said in a letter to the board he needs more room because of the detective bureau and formation of a juvenile bureau.

Forwarding of $409,000 which the state requires before signing a contract for the College-Candee bridge was ordered. It represents the remainder of the city's share of a third of costs estimated at $1,350,000.

Provide Appraisal
New wage rates, supplied by Appleton Building Trades council for inclusion in city contracts, were held pending investigation by Ald. Roy Pointer of why some categories require payment of fringe benefits. Pointer also is to find out whether they are higher than state requirements.

Appleton Board of Insurance Agents, it was decided, will be asked to provide an appraisal of city holdings as part of its service under insurance policies the city carries with the agents.

Henry Techlin, 312 E. Lindbergh street, was denied a rebate on charges for sewer and water laterals stubbed into his property in 1956. He said he put his house on four lots on purpose and won't need the extra stubs. Board members explained he has enough land remaining on both sides of the house to subdivide in the future. The stubs would prevent opening of the street to service additional houses at a future date, they said.

Identical bids to furnish calcium chloride and rock salt for the winter de-icing of streets program were forwarded to the street committee.

Conference Discusses High School PTA's

Panel Participants Feel Such Units Could Accomplish Much for Pupils

The functions, problems and possibilities of extending Parent-Teacher associations to the secondary school level were discussed by a panel of four this morning during the annual conference of the Eighth district of the Wisconsin PTA congress.

All panel participants felt such an extension (most PTA groups are organized in elementary schools) would be of benefit to the student, the school and the community.

About 150 parents and teachers from Outagamie, Brown, Oconto, Marinette, Shawano, Kewaunee and Door counties are at First Methodist church today for the conference.

T. J. Kuemmerlein, Milwaukee, first vice president of the state congress, acted as panel moderator. He noted there seems to be some resistance among secondary school people toward formation of PTAs on higher levels.

Work Closer
He contended a closer working relationship is needed between parents and secondary schools but said some administrators tend to resent parents becoming interested in the schools.

Panel Member Mrs. Mar-den Phillips, Madison, high school service chairman for the state PTA congress, said to the secondary school PTA's are necessary because "youth needs them."

Teenagers are going through many changes at that age, she went on, and may present problems both at home and at school. "Parents need to know what's happening in school so they can help schools achieve what they're trying to do with the students. . . But the main function of the PTA is to be informed and to interpret the school to the community. . . It should not be a grievance committee or a fund raising committee but a fact-finding committee."

Local Work
Neil Lunenschloss, Roosevelt Junior High school principal, explained the work of his school's PTA, the only secondary school PTA in Appleton, and noted the group did a lot of fact finding last year.

He suggested other groups study current criticisms of education and adopt "some sort of positive program. PTAs shouldn't be social. They shouldn't be knitting clubs," he said.

Another panel speaker, the Rev. Ralph Taylor Alton, host pastor, said PTAs and churches can work hand in hand in molding young people and promoting values which both believe important.

"The church is concerned with the total person so all influences on people are the concern of the church. We can't have concern for youngsters in the church without having a concern for them in school, also."

Teenager Speaks
Final speaker was Kathy Allen, a Sturgeon Bay High school senior and daughter of one of the founders of the high school PTA in that community.

She stated much good could be done for students through PTAs and contended such an organization "makes the students feel more secure."

Miss Allen also suggested the possibility of including students in PTA units "for a 3-way relationship and closer harmony between parents, teachers and students."

New London Chamber Asks Reconstruction Of County Trunk D

Reconstruction of County Trunk D, which forms the county line between Waupaca and Outagamie counties, has been asked by the New London Chamber of Commerce.

The request was sent to the highway committee. The 5-year programming of county trunk construction does not include D.

The New London chamber says traffic has increased and the road has deteriorated in recent years as more people use D as a shortcut to connect with Highway 45 near Oshkosh. School buses use the road more frequently, it was said.

An identical request was made to Waupaca county.

Fischer Asks Work of DA Be Lightened

Says Corporation Counsel May Be Able To Do Some of It

Shifting some of the district attorney's work load to the corporation counsel was suggested to the Outagamie county board by Appleton Supv. Alois C. Fischer Tuesday.

Fischer pointed out a recent investigation of the district attorney's office indicated it had a "rather heavy work load, and I believe the question of an assistant was brought up as a possible solution."

Check Possibility
"Before incurring additional obligations on the taxpayers . . . hiring an assistant district attorney, we might check the possibility of shifting some portion of the district attorney's work load to the corporation counsel," Fischer said.

The county board's courts and administration of justice committee in July investigated the district attorney's office, concluding that a study and recommendations should be made.

The study has not been continued since that time.

Dist. Atty. George Greisch has appeared before the committee and asked for additional office help. No action has been taken. Raymond P. Dohr is corporation counsel.

Fischer's suggestion went to the executive committee.

Defense Commission Sets $4,200 Budget; $17,105 Was Sought

A civil defense budget of $4,200 has been approved for next year by the civil defense commission.

Director Robert C. Beltrone asked for appropriations totaling $17,105, Mayor Mitchell said, but the board cut out most of them.

Beltrone was given permission to ask the budget committee to consider his proposals. He is expected to draft a letter itemizing his additional requests.

The $4,200 included $1,550 for route and shelter signs, radio equipment, auxiliary police equipment and a projector and screen. The rest is for salaries and expenses.

Largest single item which was cut and which Beltrone will seek from the budget committee is $8,200 for an alarm system, Mitchell said.

Textile War in Asia Likely To Hurt India

Chinese, Japanese Battle Already Effecting Exports

Bombay — India likely will suffer in any all-out textile battle in southeast Asia between Japan and communist China.

India's cotton textile exports dropped sharply in the first six months of 1958.

Officials blame the Chinese textile drive for part of the loss, but admit it's only one of several reasons. Indian textile makers were feeling the pinch of Japanese competition before China entered the field.

Much of India's textile equipment is old. The percentage of automatic looms is small. Some workers lack efficiency. They oppose introduction of automatic looms if it means the loss of any jobs. Also, India encourages the handloom cloth industry. This cuts into the production of mill cloth.

India built up many of its Asian markets in the years immediately after World War II, before Japan and China returned to their prewar fields.

Strong Competitor
Japan is a strong competitor today in the Mideast and Africa.

Even Pakistan, not one of the major textile producers, has nipped some Indian markets.

The Indian government is worried. It needs constantly increasing amounts of foreign exchange. Instead it has been getting increasingly less. Indian exports have declined across the board in recent months.

The government has set up a series of export promotion boards and is giving some tax and other concessions. In textiles, the government also agreed to allow manufacturers to use a small part of their foreign exchange earnings to buy new equipment.

Businessmen say they need a lot more help to meet the increasing competition in southeast Asia.

Course for Nurses

A refresher course for registered nurses will be offered Nov. 6 and 7 at St. Elizabeth hospital under auspices of the Appleton district of the Wisconsin Nurses association and the nursing department of University of Wisconsin extensions.

2 Youths Fined On Game Law Violations

Two youths were fined $40 each in municipal court Tuesday on two counts of game law violations. They were arrested Sunday night in the town of Dale by Conservation Warden Charles Wranosky. Wranosky said the youths were shining deer, but they told Judge Oscar J. William J. Weiland, 16, Schmege they were coon route 1, New London, and Ir-hunting. They were allowed to keep their guns and hunting licenses.

Denies Drunken Driving Charge
Jarvis R. Satorius, 33, Black Creek, Tuesday in municipal court pleaded innocent of driving and posted $118.95 bond for trial Oct. 11. He was arrested Saturday on W. Eighth street by Appleton police.
